ELLIOTT & FOWLER

TO the memory of Harrison Standish Smalley, A. B., Ph. D., Professor of Economics in the University of Michigan, whose nobility of character, steadfast friendship, tenacity of purpose, and scholarly zeal were a continual inspiration to his students, we dedicate

The Michiganensian
of 1913

Harrison Standish Smalley

THE deaths of some men cast over us the pall of sadness caused by the loss of those whom we have loved as dear friends—those who by daily contact have established a place in our hearts which no one else can fill.

The deaths of others leave us to mourn the departure of men who have done great things—who have run life's course without retarding the progress of another and have at the same time cleared the track of obstacles which might hinder the man behind.

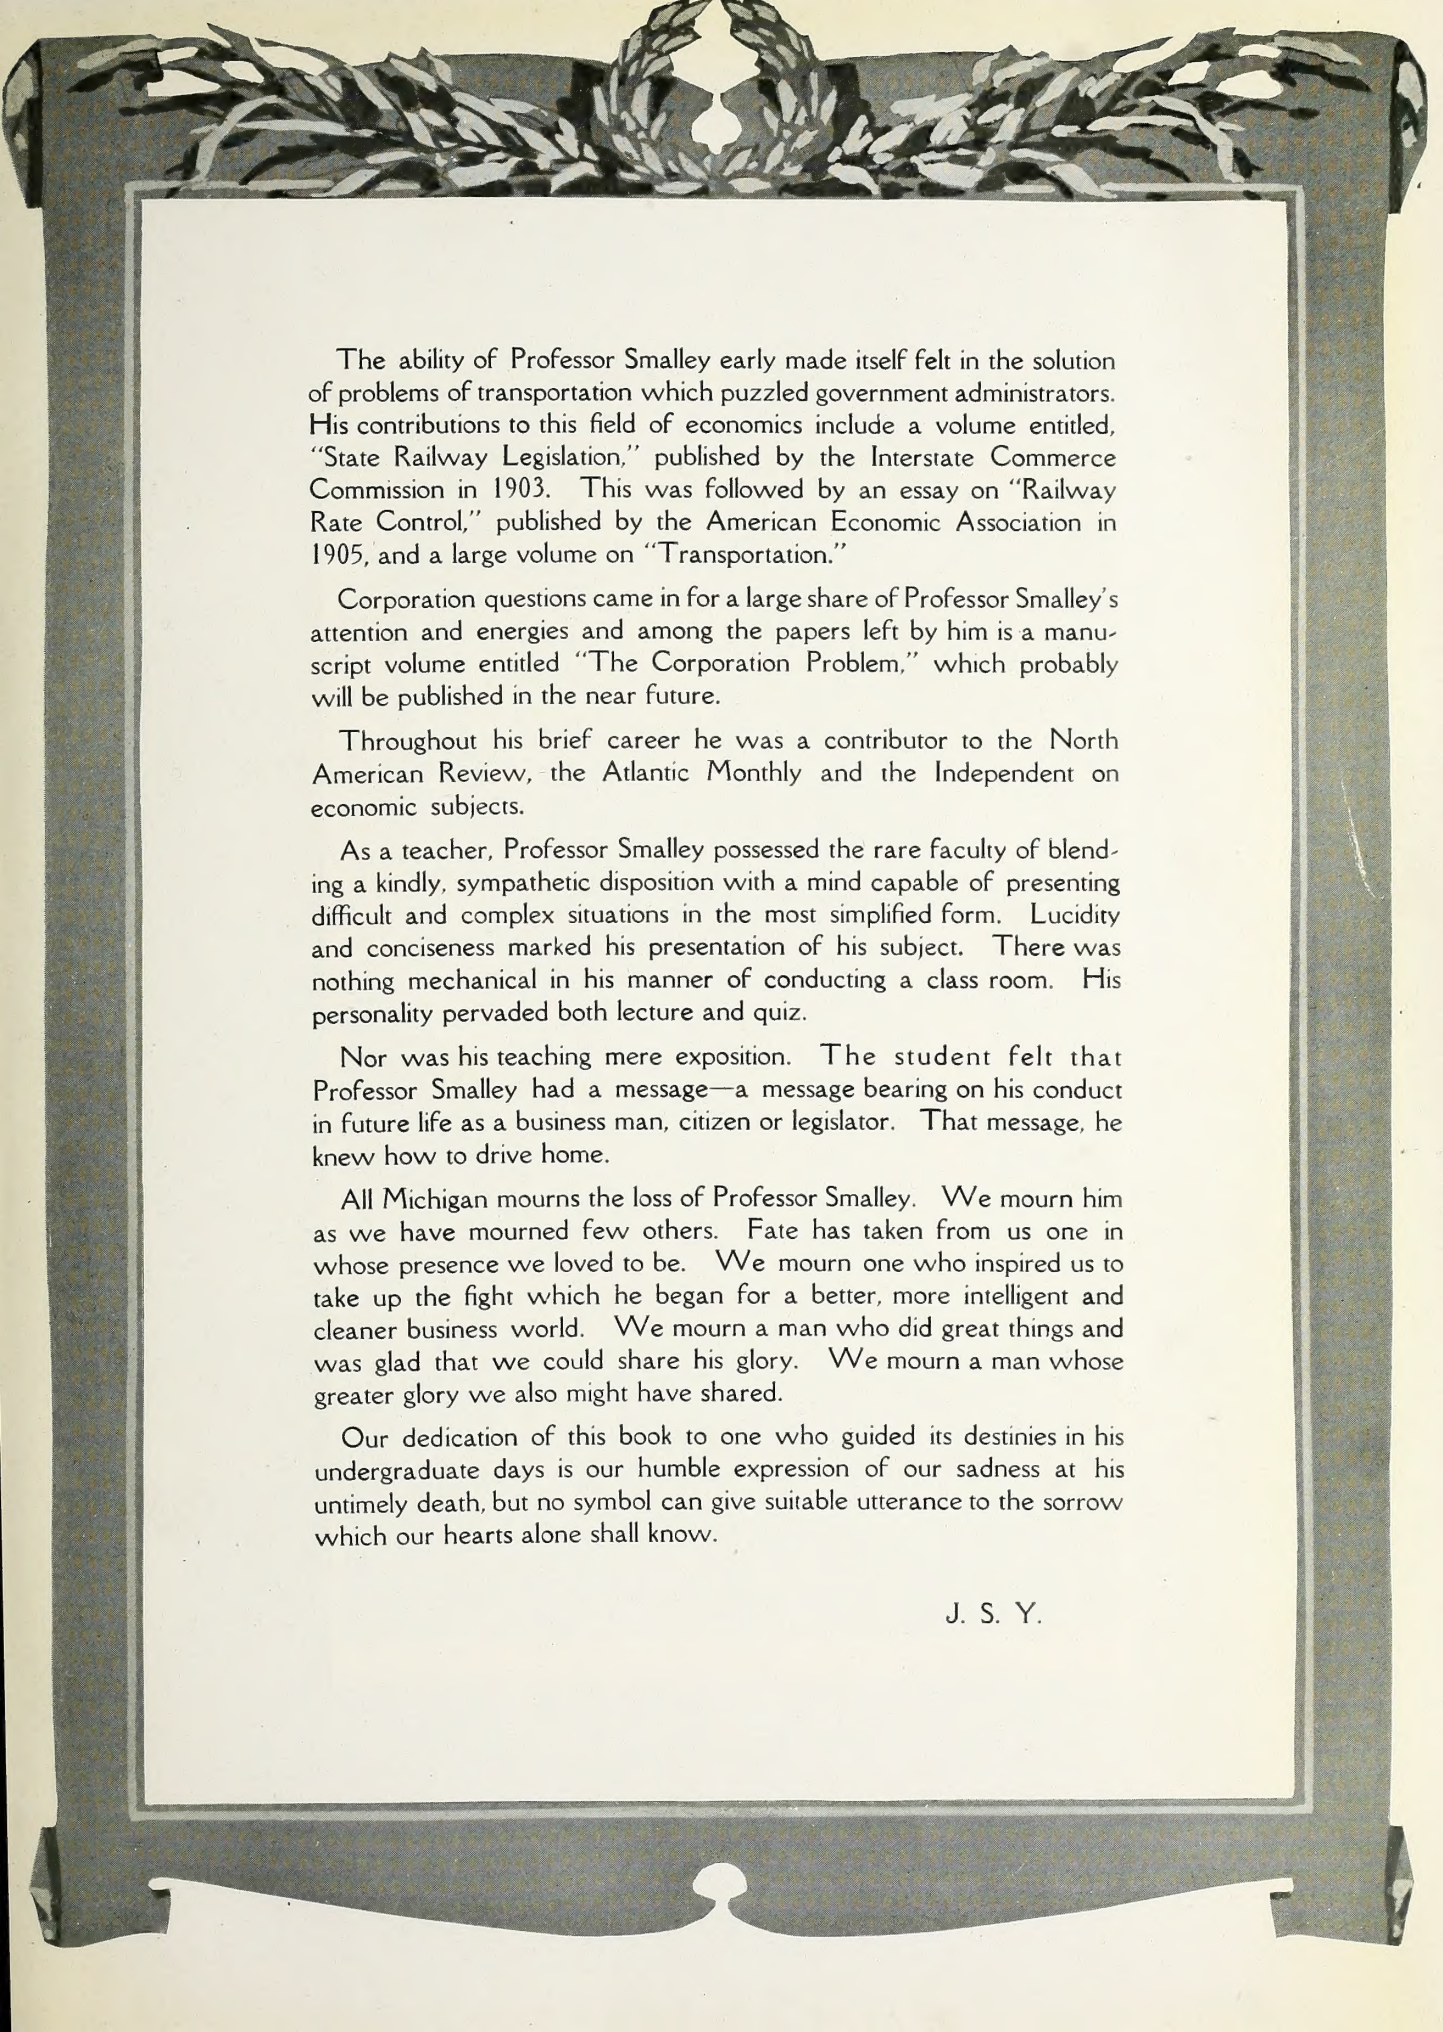

Still others leave us to mourn the deaths of those who began to run life's course well, but who were stopped by an unrelenting fate when the goal was but a few paces off.

In the loss of Professor Smalley, who died in Charlevoix, September 23, 1912, and in loving memory of whom this book is dedicated; we mourn thrice. We mourn a friend whom we loved as we loved few others—a great man who did great things and one who was to do more great things.

Harrison Standish Smalley was born in Chicago, April 18, 1878. He entered the department of literature, science and the arts of the University of Michigan in 1896, and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1900. After graduation he spent a year as fellow of political economy at Cornell University, returning to the Michigan graduate school in 1902. He held the position of assistant in political economy in 1902, and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in June of the following year.

Doctor Smalley then was appointed instructor in political economy and was advanced to an assistant professorship in 1907. He was made professor in 1911, after receiving several important offers from prominent universities.

As an economist, Professor Smalley devoted himself particularly to problems bearing on the relation of modern industrial conditions to jurisprudence. As part of his preparation for his work he spent three years as a student in the law department. A pioneer in this field, Professor Smalley applied himself with his remarkable capacity for work and keen powers of analysis to these questions and rapidly rose to the position of an authority.

The ability of Professor Smalley early made itself felt in the solution of problems of transportation which puzzled government administrators. His contributions to this field of economics include a volume entitled, "State Railway Legislation," published by the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1903. This was followed by an essay on "Railway Rate Control," published by the American Economic Association in 1905, and a large volume on "Transportation."

Corporation questions came in for a large share of Professor Smalley's attention and energies and among the papers left by him is a manuscript volume entitled "The Corporation Problem," which probably will be published in the near future.

Throughout his brief career he was a contributor to the North American Review, the Atlantic Monthly and the Independent on economic subjects.

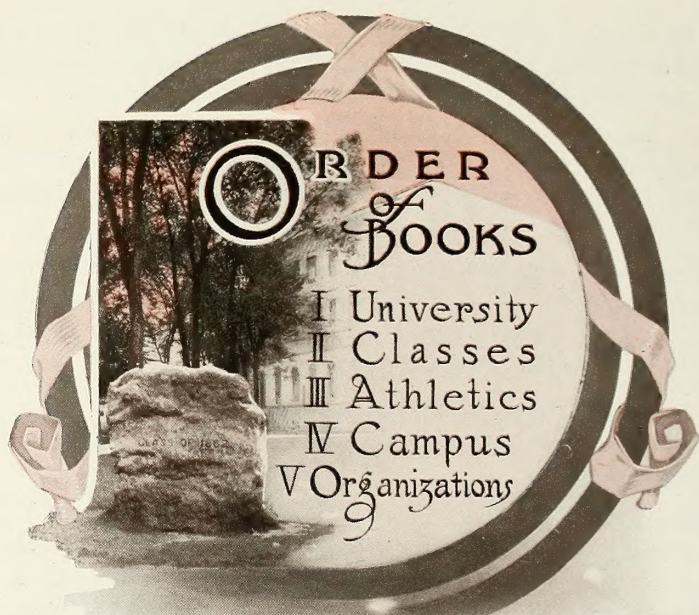

As a teacher, Professor Smalley possessed the rare faculty of blending a kindly, sympathetic disposition with a mind capable of presenting difficult and complex situations in the most simplified form. Lucidity and conciseness marked his presentation of his subject. There was nothing mechanical in his manner of conducting a class room. His personality pervaded both lecture and quiz.

Nor was his teaching mere exposition. The student felt that Professor Smalley had a message—a message bearing on his conduct in future life as a business man, citizen or legislator. That message, he knew how to drive home.

All Michigan mourns the loss of Professor Smalley. We mourn him as we have mourned few others. Fate has taken from us one in whose presence we loved to be. We mourn one who inspired us to take up the fight which he began for a better, more intelligent and cleaner business world. We mourn a man who did great things and was glad that we could share his glory. We mourn a man whose greater glory we also might have shared.

Our dedication of this book to one who guided its destinies in his undergraduate days is our humble expression of our sadness at his untimely death, but no symbol can give suitable utterance to the sorrow which our hearts alone shall know.

BOOK II CLASSES

The Seventy-fifth Anniversary Celebration

WITH three thousand alumni garbed in gala hot weather attire and packed into every conceivable nook around the campus, and with a week of fine weather spreading its radiance on the occasion, the Seventy-Fifth Anniversary of the founding of the University of Michigan was fittingly celebrated June 23-28, 1912. Senators, Bishops and College Professors assembled in glorious confusion and for several days little Ann Arbor was more like the Atlantic City board walk with Congress enjoying a recess and a galaxy of college dignitaries meeting in convention there at the same time, than a staid university center.

More than twice as many graduates as were ever before assembled in Ann Arbor were present at the ceremonies. They came, bringing wives and children, and they arrived in such numbers that forty-two classes were enabled to hold reunions during the week. Despite the large numbers all were given good accommodations. The Michigan Union had previously undertaken arrangements for housing the visitors, and through the agency of its rooming bureau was in a position to furnish suitable rooms for all who came.

According to the most authentic information accessible, there has been but one rainy Commencement week in Ann Arbor during the last forty years. Last June was far from being the exception. Every day during the week of festivities was sunny and warm, without any oppressive heat, except on Wednesday, when, on the occasion of the baseball game with Pennsylvania, coats were removed, linen apparel made a general appearance, and baseball weather seemed to have begun in earnest.

The program began on Sunday evening with the annual baccalaureate address, given by Suffragan Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, '75, of New York City. The title of Bishop Burch's remarks was "The Optimism of Unrest." University Hall was packed for the occasion, although but few of the official delegates from other universities and colleges had as yet arrived in Ann Arbor. "Alcestis," by Euripides, was presented Monday evening by the women of the senior class before the portals of the Alumni Memorial hall. The play was acted in the soft glow of arc lamps, placed at a distance from the stage, and focused on the performers, giving the scene a weird, fantastic atmosphere.

To the 500 undergraduates, including seniors, who remained in Ann Arbor for the celebration—the most interesting feature of the week was the Michigan Union vaudeville entertainment, given Tuesday afternoon in the large pavilion-tent erected between the chemistry building and the gymnasiums. Preceding the performance, there was a parade of campus organizations, led by the band. The procession passed by the reviewing stand on the steps of Memorial hall, and around the campus to the pavilion, where all entered the huge tent. The program for the afternoon was made up of stunts and skits presented by members of the student body.

The annual senior reception was held Tuesday evening in the gyms. The Hon. Lawrence Maxwell, '74, of Cincinnati, was the principal speaker at the commemoration exercises, Wednesday morning. In an address, which really was a complete and intimate history of the growth of the University of Michigan, Mr. Maxwell impressed his audience with the foremost position long held by the Ann Arbor institution. Following the commemoration address, congratulatory speeches by the presidents of Michigan state colleges completed the program for the morning.

The chief event of Wednesday afternoon was the final baseball game of the season, with Pennsylvania at Ferry Field. The eastern team had defeated the Wolverines twice during the year. But the hundreds of alumni who swarmed to the field were as enthusiastic as if Michigan's championship of the universe was at stake. In what proved to be the best game of the year on the home grounds, Pennsy was beaten by the score of 2 to 1.

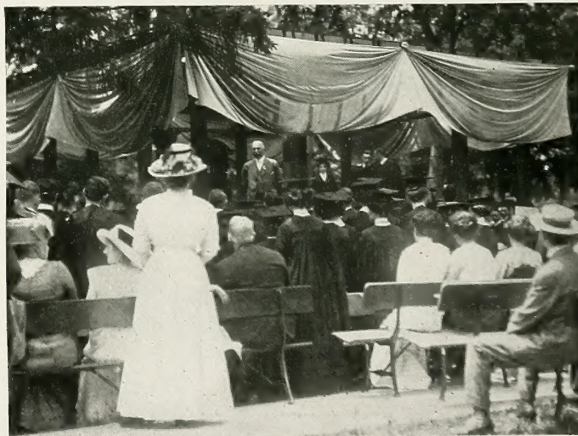

The annual Commencement exercises were held Thursday morning. Several of the senior classes gave their program out-of-doors, temporary stands being erected, and seats arranged for the members of the class. The event of Thursday noon was the President's luncheon in the library. Covers were laid for two hundred visiting delegates and possessors of honorary degrees and their wives.

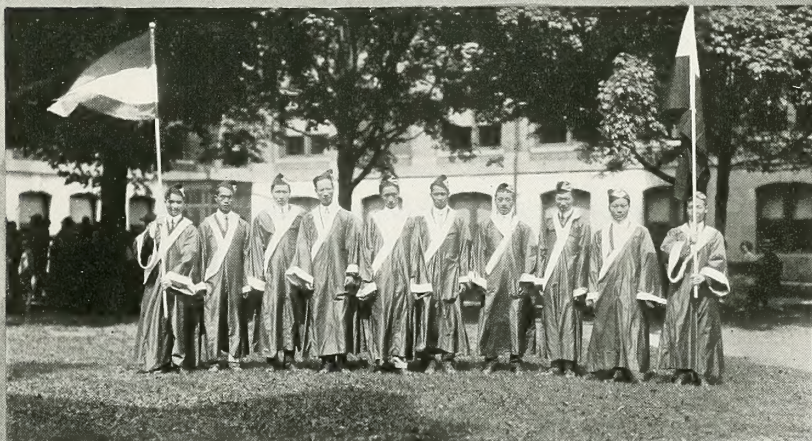

Probably the prettiest part of the week's program was the campus illumination Thursday evening. Thousands of Japanese lanterns were strung on wires about the campus, two long rows running the entire length of the walk on the west side of University hall. More were strung along the diagonal walk and between Memorial hall and the band-stand, located in the center of the campus. Electric lights were concealed in the trees near the library, and one by one were flashed on and off. The tower of the library was outlined with festoons of electric lamps, while an immense search-light, placed on the top of the medical building, played on the whole scene. It was a beautiful sight, and the effect was indescribably charming when the band, brought to Ann Arbor from Detroit for the occasion, played a soft melody with which the dangling, twinkling lanterns seemed to keep time.

Immediately following the open-air band concert, the Senate reception was held in Memorial hall. This closed the official program connected with the celebration, but many of the graduates waited over for the Alumni dinner served Friday noon.

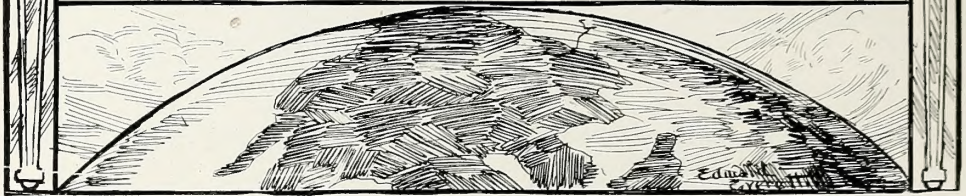

In the judgment of all those here for the event, the celebration was a success. In keeping with Michigan's ideas of democracy it was not altogether a gorgeous spectacle, but its very simplicity made it impressive and inspiring.

GRADUATE COLLEGE

Graduate Department

KARL EUGEN GUTHE, Ph.D.

The first graduate student at the University is recorded in the catalogue of 1856. The degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science were earliest conferred, the degree of Doctor of Philosophy being offered for the first time in 1876. Changes made in studies in 1877-1878 had an important bearing on graduate work at the University. This was due to the multiplication of electives and the introduction of the credit system. The seminary method of instruction began then to assume considerable proportions, and the movement was strengthened by a growing demand for better trained teachers.

In the spring of 1892 a Graduate School was organized in connection with the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts. Thus provision was made for a more systematic and efficient administration of higher work, and, so far as possible, for the separate instruction of graduate students.

In the fall of 1912 the Graduate School was reorganized as the Graduate Department so as to include graduate work in all Departments of the University. The management of the Graduate Department is vested in an Executive Board of seven, together with the President and the Dean of the Department.

LITERARY

*Department of Literature,
Science and Arts*

JOHN ROBERT EFFINGER, Ph.D.,
Acting Dean.

The department had its origin in the original act passed by the Legislature which created the University, commonly known as the "Organic Act," passed in 1837. Owing to many complications the university was not opened until September, 1841, with two professors, a librarian and six students. The department was conducted along the conventional and traditional lines until 1852, which date marks the advent of Dr. Tappan and the passing of a new act by the Legislature granting the University much greater power. Until the year 1855-56, no electives were allowed and the degree given was A.B., but with the beginning of this year the seniors were allowed to elect one-third of their work. At this time the department gave three courses, Classical, Scientific and Latin-Scientific, which led to the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. In 1877 the department was entirely revised, and an English course was added, giving the degree of Bachelor of Letters. The elective system had progressed so far by this time that fully one-half of the studies required for the doctor's degree were elective. In 1882-83, the university system was introduced, with the idea of producing specialization, and more truly university work, during the junior and senior years. A professorship of the Science and Art of Teaching was established in 1883, which has developed into our present teacher's course and department of education.

History of 1913 Lits.

BECAUSE we happened to be born into the class of 1913, the wily "sophs" of 1912 predicted that our paths to glory would be strewn with thorns, that our passage to the Promised Land would be intercepted by snares and pitfalls. They thought us a hopeless host in those bygone days, and they dared us to make good. We started early, intent on this quest to erase the stigma which sophomore superstition attached to our war-cry, "13." Even then, our secret egotism told us that we were better than anything that Michigan had ever seen; pride surged in our breasts; and the babbling gossip of the air was early perfumed with our precocious titterings, laudatory of famous Nineteen-thirteen.

History relates that back in the crisp, bright autumn days of October, 1909, we came. We didn't know that the Town hall was not University hall; we didn't know that "Prexy's" was not a boarding house; and Elmer had to elucidate to us the subtle adumbrations attached to the significance of the preposition "with," which has made the Michigan Hamburger famous. We were not loth, in those same autumn days, promptly and obediently, to tuck our curls beneath a little grey cap, and learn ten arguments for the benefit of our boiler-smashing contemporaries as to why the black button on our peak was far more aesthetic than the sickly yellow splash of color which they preferred as the adornment of their own unresponsive craniums. And then we were honored by being the first class to have "honest-to-goodness" freshman toques wished upon us.

The first scene of our eventful history led straight to an early conquest. Our redoubtable aggregation of diamond stars came near climbing into big league berths, when they hung up a campus championship, under the leadership of Eddie Saier. And we had a basketball team that was a "comer," but someone had to be the goat when it came to the finals. We were that someone.

We bade a Freshman Banquet farewell in our first year; but common sense and progress dictated to us, that it were better to abolish class slaughters—and the Freshman Banquet, one of Michigan's old-time institutions was recorded in the history of the past.

With sophomore advancement, we shortened our trouser legs a few inches; we sprung a nobby English suit, and early looked askance at the quivering "fresh." We had a football team that looked good from the start. We watched it run up for a campus championship; we watched it play a 0-0 game with the '11 laws, and lose a final to that same aggregation on a repeated match. "Heine" Spring had had a year to dope out why we lost out in freshman basketball, and when the midget phenomenon was elected this time to captain the soph basketball team, he ably ushered it into a departmental championship.

By the junior year, we broadened, not content with our specialization. We broke into the bright lights, as every true and naughty junior should. Our social committee applied itself vigorously and organized a series of fests, wherein we were given a chance to perfect the Boston, for the Argentine Tango was yet unborn. One Bernie Fallon became famous over-night for his capacities as a social lion, and we dubbed the worthy henchman, "Handsum," to which appellation he yet promptly responds "guilty." In football we won a departmental championship, but repeated a misfortune when we lost a game to the '12 engineers, after having defeated them once. Those were the days when Max Kuhr guided the destinies of the "Old Reliables." "Banty" Irving was not to be outdone by his predecessor when it came to leading a quintette of basket-throwers into fame, and we were not surprised to see a repetition in capturing a departmental championship for our juniors.

Michigan's need for an infirmary became a question of live discussion abroad on the campus. The place which such an institution had filled on other campuses awakened in us a desire to see an infirmary here. With the co-operation of Professor M. P. Tilley, we became identified as the class to initiate this project.

In senior football we lost the final game to the '13 laws, and with it, a campus championship. But under "Reiny" Reinhart, the team landed a departmental championship, and when numerals were awarded to this eleven, it was found that something unprecedented had happened. Our class had won ninety-four numerals in its history.

Our captains, Joe Bell and "Hap" Haff, have yet to finish up for Michigan and 1913. As this goes to press, baseball and track are being talked, and dopsters have it that both have a rosy outlook.

Because freshman would receive certain benefits from council from seniors in addition to that given by faculty advisors, we adopted the senior advisory system for freshmen. Its aim is obviously to keep freshman in good standing and away from discouragements.

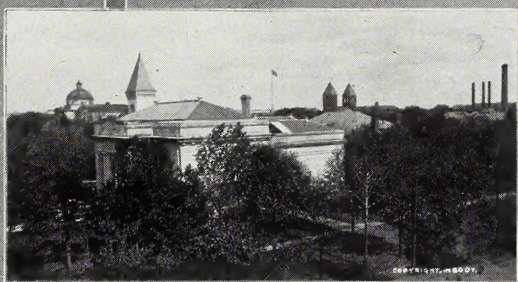

Now that we swing out around the campus of our alma mater for the last time, it is not with gladness that we make our adieus to the university which we have learned to love and of which we boast. We can remember the nights the glee club sang for us on the Huron; we can remember the rambling carelessness of our spring-day pastimes, when we should have been at our rooms preparing for another day's classes.

It is not malapropos that we associate Ann Arbor with spring, for our whole four years of pleasant toil have been, in a larger sense, a perpetual spring. When we say goodbye, we do not weep, but we can see a campus flooded with green, perhaps a vision of full-throated classmates indulging in a good old songfest comes to our mind's eye, or again, a bird's eye view of the boulevards, with a lazy Huron in the valley. There is a pleasant lake nearby, too, which we cannot disassociate from our memories; it too, takes a fair place in our recollections of happy jaunts on our off days.

Or, the more prosaic of us, after a sociable game at Si's, hear again the sizzle at the "hamburger" and the raucous voice of Silenus calling to his kitchen guard, something about something "sunny side up, with raw."

After all is said and done, we agree with the fickle Goddess of Fussdom—"it was just simply wonderful."

Class Pe(s)ts of the Senior Lits.

IF YOUR name, dear reader, is not enrolled in these presents, we congratulate you. Pardon us for revealing professional secrets, but our job is one of a very confidential character. We can tell you what your best girl thinks of you; we can tell you in what esteem, or non-esteem both your friends and your enemies hold you. Pardon us, then, for insulting you. The job was wished upon us. Our office hours are in either of the gymns after ten o'clock post meridian, and vary directly as the press of our business requires.

Our caption above may invite your inquiry. We insert an extra letter merely to balance the word. We might say that we are jealous of you for the glory heaped upon you, or we might say that we object to telling the world how good you are. We may, or may not agree with the verdict passed upon you by the electorate body of our illustrious class, but we are in honor bound to publish you as you are in the will of the majority.

"Clem" Quinn, "Bake" Abbott, and "Dick" Dickenson, our president, contest for the favor of the plebeians, and run a vigorous race for that prize, yclept, "the most popular man." The big, rotund countenanced "Clem" carries off the rose accorded him by the girls of the class who are unanimous in approving him. The surprising number of votes cast for "myself, of course," have been declared null and void by one of the capital clauses of our constitution.

Mercedes de Goenaga claims the distinction of being the most popular girl, which title has been generously given her, although Harriet Carrol and Ruth Davis are prominently eligible to the same honor.

We hate to tell it, but "Bill" Hart has received the honor of being the most persistent fusser. Other competitors are hard to find—even with an X-ray. "Cawpy," our genial amanuensis, has just given voice to a joke: "Because he is all hart." "Cawpy's" remains will be interred demain matin.

To Elaine Shields comes the thunderous avalanche of votes to establish her supreme in the dignity of her position, "the jolliest girl of the class." Her champions acclaim her a panacea for anything from the blues to tremor cordis. Her nearest competitors are Beulah Dillingham and Amy Barnum.

And here we come to the touchiest of them all, the handsomest man in the class. Where exists there a man who has one spark of egotism in his make-up, who has not laboriously traced, in the privacy of his boudoir, in which a mirror occupies a commanding place, those certain subtle elements which allow him to pretend to this favor of favors. And Brother Bill had the nerve to say—"Woman, thy name is frailty." "Howdy" Wilson happened to be the elected party. All others have to pack their tents like the Arabs and silently steal away from those facial charms, which have made "the adorable child" famous. Dexter Reinhart was not forgotten, nor was Loren Robinson, but what chance has a fellow when Beau Brummel himself is in the running.

As a fit participant in this same honor, Georgia Maier leads the girls by a vast majority, but many have found it hard to pass Marguerite Stanley and Mildred Guilford by without taking a second look.

To the enviable dignity of being the best student, "Ed" Thurston and "Dick" Dickenson seem to be safe bets. At the time this goes to press, wearers of the key have not yet been selected, but we wish you luck.

Our class is replete in athletes, two of whom are varsity captains. To one of these comes the plum for being the best athlete. Lean "Hap" Haff of cinder path fame, and one-time contestant for glory at the Olympic games, crosses the tape at a safe distance, although "Joe" Bell and "Clem" Quinn are not unrewarded with votes for their physical brawn.

One "Walt" Staebler is conceded a wit. Subsequently he was elected toast-master of the senior "lit" banquet. Some will amend their vote with parentheses embracing the one, sole, significant word "joke." Which all goes to show that some men have greatness thrust upon them.

But some too, are born great. Wherefore we can see "Carl" Schoeffel and Rolfe Spinning born into that glory which we have no power to give them. They have verily coming to them, unaided and unimpeded, the distinction of being the shrewdest politicians of our class.

"Eddie" Saier, "Bernie" Fallon, and "Brick" Robinson are pretendant to the honor of being the worst knockers of our class.

There is a kindred art, called bluffing. Some are wont to derogate this art, this knack, or what you will. There are some who think there's no one so good as a good bluffer, no one so commendable as the one who gets away with it. So, Camilius Tribble, you stand where the path divides. Don't blame all your friends for concurring in the belief that you bluff. It may be flattery.

Because he will promise to do anything (but seldom sticks to that promise) many have cast their vote for one John K. Coolidge of our class as the most promising man. Others care to heap the glory upon Michigan Daily cubs; others on those who keep away from the beautiful girls. So what's the use, John K?

There is a certain job, given with others of the sundry powers of office, which the president and others at the wheel of our destinies, are permitted to dispose of as best they think fit. Said position is the obscure function which falls to the Pipe and Stein committee. Now who other than the most hopeless, could fall heir to such a lot? Now we don't ask you to look up the personnel of said Pipe and Stein committee, but we do wish to call attention to the fact that Morley Griswold's name heads the list. Now it is a strange coincidence that we should have to bear the tearful news that Morley is elected, but as a consolation, we might add that there are others.

Cupid seems to be a mischievous disturber of our Harts, and we have two of them in our class now, a Romeo and a Juliet. But strangely enough, neither of them seems to have convinced the multitude of their serious intentions, for the electorate has already asserted its belief that Ray Bassett and Ruth Burdsal will be the first to take the long leap—easy going, but awfully hard coming back. Wendell Coler has not been overlooked for the Spectator has him spotted for a coming benedict. And strange as it may seem, these "first ones to get married" votes, run in pairs, and Stella Chalmers, is believed by many to be the first girl in the class to be married.

Again Professor C. H. Van Tyne has won his way to the hearts of our class, and Professors David Friday and T. E. Rankin follow close, according to the ballot.

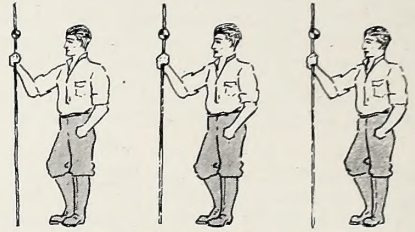

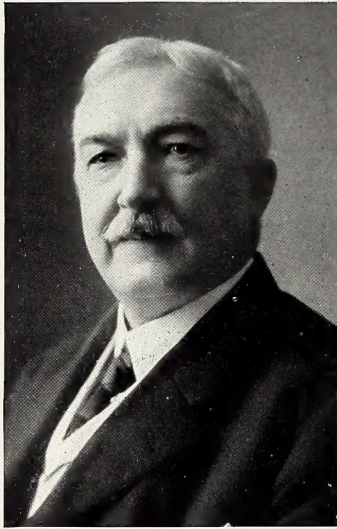

In keeping our promise to be the truthful agent in conveying the secret confessions of the class, we have to tearfully admit that Joe Parker's Haven of Rest has won the men's vote as being the best thing in Ann Arbor; a few have signified as their choice, the sorority houses and their inhabitants, and some there are who have gone so far as to seriously believe that the University library is the best thing in town.

Some have learned, they confess, that they have come to appreciate how little they know; one of our "figuratively speaking" patients claims (and we must forbear from mentioning names) that he has at last come to realize, that a college student is "a young man all dressed up, who has no place to go." (The braggart!) And the modish constituents of our motley assemblage say that they have learned the tango.

Somebody started a joke (?) Wily sleuths are looking for the offender yet. It all happened because on the reverse side of the voting slip, it was asked "What were your snap courses?" Whereupon the miscreant had the audacity to demur, "I'll bite."

ENGINEERING

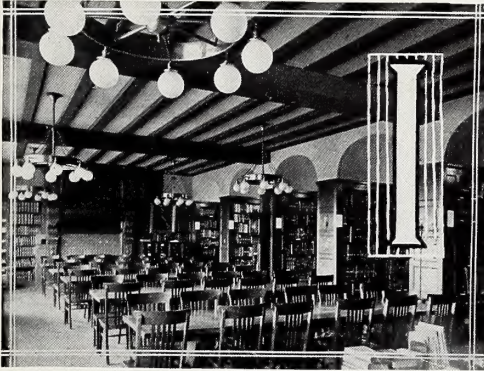

Department of Engineering

MORTIMER ELWYN COOLEY,
M.E., LL.D., D.E., Dean

The original act of 1837 made provision for this department, but no instruction was given in engineering until 1853-54, and no degree until 1860. This was largely due to the financial condition of the University at this time; although no separate department was established, engineering work was long conducted as a sub-division of the Literary Department and was developed and controlled by that faculty until 1895. At this time the regents gave it an individual status of its own, making it co-ordinate with the other departments. Chas. E. Green, Professor of Civil Engineering, was made dean. The requirements for entrance were practically those of the Literary Department; however, more credit was demanded for graduation. In the first year 331 students matriculated, and from then on the department has had a most remarkable growth. The home of the department was the old Civil Engineering building which had earlier been the home of the president. The present Engineering building was completed in 1904, and in five years had become so inadequate that it has recently been enlarged about one-third of its former capacity. The department now includes courses leading to the degrees of M.E., E.E., Chem. E., Mar.E., Arch. and Arch.E., each possessing its own head of the department. The naval tank in the University was for some time the only one possessed by any university in the country. In 1912 the Hydraulic Laboratory, Refrigerating Plant and Wireless Station were added. The department has recently inaugurated a series of four, five and six year courses, with the corresponding degrees of B.S. in Eng. or Arch., Bachelor of Engineering and Master of Engineering, and this scheme seems to promise a satisfactory solution for the many criticisms directed against a purely technical or engineering education.

Senior Engineers—Class History

IN September, 1909, the campus awoke from its summer nap to find a new class in its midst, bearing hoodoo numerals, that struck terror into the hearts of the superstitious, and delight into the hearts of the unsuperstitious.

We speedily proved to the sophs that we were neither unlucky, green nor incapable by winning the first daylight rush, with the ease of veterans.

Our advent into college life marked the abolishment of a good share of the old underclass rivalry. The freshman banquet and hazing were placed under the ban, and "Elmer" went back to his vacation of distributing hamburgers, minus the hazing adjunct to his establishment.

In a lively contest for the class presidency "Ted" Schepler was selected to lead us through our infant days. We discovered in short order that our athletic material was limited. "Eddie" Hancock was the first and only man to win his numerals in our freshman year. Being freshmen we did little else but attend class smokers and mix. A few studied.

"Koanzaland," with its "Bluebook Man," song warned some of us, that at the end of each semester we were supposed to integrate an exam, within the limits of one to four hours. Most of us solved the problem, but a number subsequently received invitations to depart for other climes.

The fall of '10 found the majority back on deck and "Ev" Evans became our next leader.

Things began to pick up during our sophomore year. "Peanuts" McGee made the Daily staff, and was appointed managing editor of the Wolverine. Our class relay team, under the managership of "Phil" Fletcher, won its numerals and we began to mix in many campus activities.

October, '11, saw us back, proud of our new mantle of upperclassmanship. "Nig" Kuhn was selected to lead us through the stormy year of "S. and R." Under "Nig's" regime we really began to make ourselves felt as a potent factor in campus life. Together with the '13 lits we started the "Junior Jamboree," and "Junior Day"—the first, a joint lit-engineer dance and the latter, a junior class day at Whitmore lake.

We were well represented on the musical clubs by "Packy" McFarland, "Stan" Mills, "Baldy" Baldwin, "Harry" Harrington, and "Carl" Fisher. In campus politics we were no back numbers. Two of the boys won berths in "the little house across the street." "Wy" Williamson was elected Varsity track manager, and "Mort" Hunter, secretary of the Athletic association and member of the Board in Control of Athletics.

"Harry" Corbin and "Larry" Holmboe brought the athletic honors to the class that year. "Harry" won his "M" in baseball and "Larry" emulated him in tennis.

In our student council elections, "Jake" Crane and "Frank" Gibbs were first honored. In our other elections for student council, "Scott" Hopkin, "Eddie" Hancock, George Brown, and "Walt" Drury were elected. "Eddie" Hancock was president of the council, the second semester of the senior year.

"Jinx" Otto led our relay team to within one step of the campus championship, and "Bruce" Anderson ministered to the woes of the class basketball teams in the capacity of interclass basketball manager.

We showed that we were mixing in everything, when "Phil" Fletcher pulled down the position of general chairman of the 1913 Union opera, "Contrarie Mary" and "Jake" Crane landed the head bossmanship of the Union jubilee vaudeville show.

During the summer between junior and senior years the civils went up to the shores of Douglas lake where, under the leadership of Professor C. T. Johnston, they set a record for originality in making improvements and devising "stunts" to make the stay in camp speed by pleasantly.

The fall of '12 found us back on the job ready to tackle anything and worrying about nothing. "Ed" Lazear was selected to pilot us through our last year in college, with "Wy" Williamson, "Shanks" Waite, and "Bob" McMath as foremen. "Ed" Lazear, "Nig" Kuhn, and "Jinx" Otto, and the "Darbs," set a new mark for triumvirates. Through the efforts of the "Darbs" "pep," fun, and a spirit of good fellowship were fostered among us, of which few classes can boast.

"Peanuts" McGee again showed his versatility by winning the job of editor-in-chief of the Gargoyle. "Mort" Hunter served two years as night editor on the "Daily."

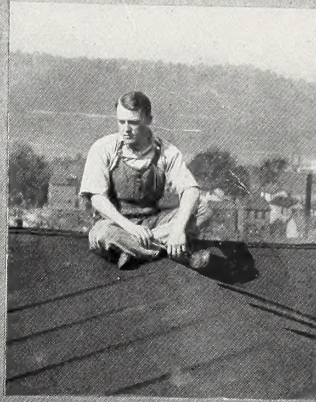

On Union committees, the mandolin club and in other campus affairs we were well represented.

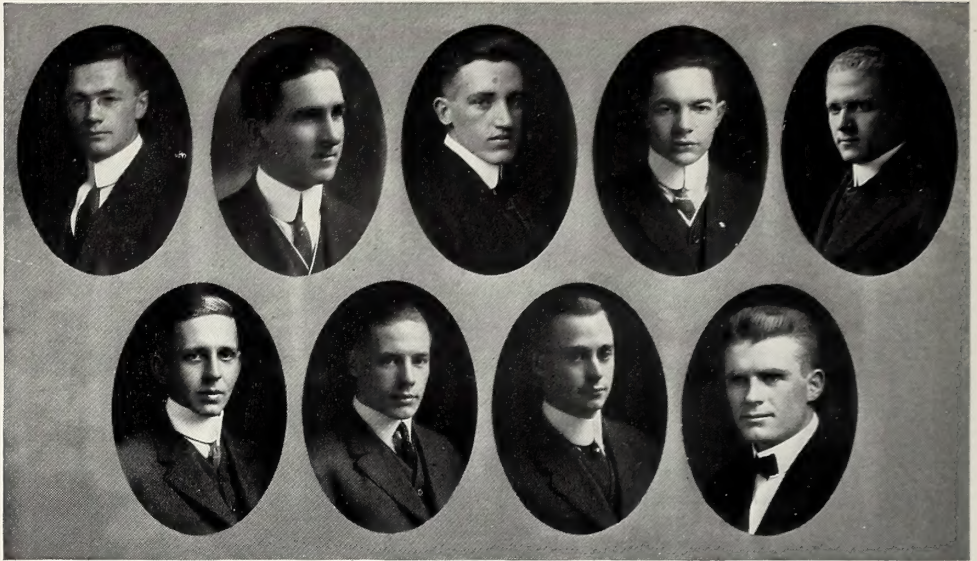

"Ted" Baier and "Charlie" Smith represented the class on the Varsity track team. "Ted" broke the gym record for two laps. "Bugs" Weaver lead our class relay team.

Nearing the end of our course we feel proud as we look back over our record. We may not have had many athletes, but we had something that everyone needs and few possess—the ability to stick and make good with what we had. For engineers we indeed mixed in everything. In fact we beat the lits at their own game.

And when this June we gather up our scattered belongings and hike for our first jobs, we will look back with pride at our efforts, and longing for the days that will come no more.

Senior Engineering Statistics

IT IS true we engineers are different. Ask a senior lit who is the most popular man in his class, the most persistent fusser, the best plugger—and ten to one, he'll rattle off a list of names to you so fast you'll strain your auditory nerve. Ask another senior lit and another and another—dollars to doughnuts each one will give the same list. Again we'll venture the price of a stogie that the same will be true of the "medics" and the rest of the cane carriers.

Not so with us. We engineers are different. Excuse the "sob"—but it's a tough job selecting our excellent classmates.

For example, find a senior boilermaker who isn't an excellent—yes, we say excellent—candidate for the office of King Fusser. "Walt" Drury, "Stub" Sanzi, "Tut" Lazear, Fred Lucht—we could go on indefinitely, but the editor needs the space, he says, so we'll let you in on the news here. Irrepressible Fred Lucht wins. By a close margin, to be sure, but he wins.

Big Tim Sullivan, "Fingy" Conners, the Great Commoner and the rest of the crew will have to fight for their laurels when we get the time and money to get into the political game. Why? Read the collegiate record of "Eddie" Hancock, "Tut" Lazear, and "Lemp" Lemper—and shudder, when you think of the future of the American voter. Shudder! We do.

Even Phil Fletcher is not given his well deserved title of most popular man without terrific competition by "Brownie" Brown and Julius Martinek.

With the exception of one, each boilermaker receives a vote apiece in the balloting for the prettiest girl. Miss Hamilton finally wins out by a margin of one. We won't say whose vote gave her the victory.

We had held the names of "Walt" Freund, "Davi" Davidson and Saulson in readiness to insert in the space for best student, but along comes "Proc" Brown and brings on the unexpected. We have communicated the news to sundry sororities.

There are no knockers in the senior engineering class of 1913—What's that? There is. Who? "Blake," comes the reply, and Blake it is.

Successful bluffers it should be, not successful bluffer, and the vote goes to "Doe" Cook, with "Barry" Ratcliffe, second and "Dean" Gibbs as the also ran.

"Jake" Spiegel and "Jim" Clune hold up both ends of the most promising and most hopeless candidate with Jake on the success terminal.

By the paradoxical action of sundry individuals "Peanuts" McGee officially becomes class humorist, but from among those running unattached "Jinx," "Nig" and "Tut" share the honors of being the funny folk. We know they won't be jealous of one another.

Another of our number has admitted for us that we aren't much at athletics, but when it comes to shining lights, "Mort" Hunter leads with "Pipp" Schneider and "Larry" Holmboe still fighting.

Of course, the jolliest girl should have been a certain telephone operator whose eyes—But Ted Warford is it.

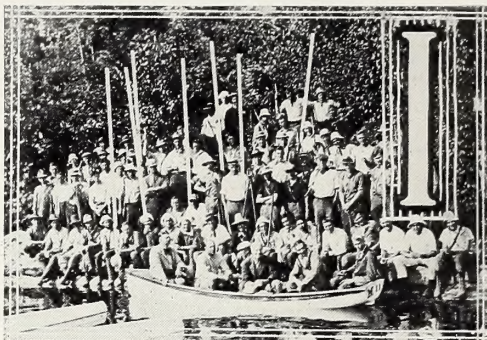

"Walt" Fiske and "Cupe" Otis are awarded the privilege of entering the ranks of the benedicts before any other. But we'll keep watch on "Hughie" Thrall and "Shorty" Uhl for very good reasons.

Despite all the able assistance which Bill Dieterle and fashion plates could give him "Nig" is beaten in the race for the handsomest man. Brownie's ties and Kirk Hoagg's socks make them eligible, but on general principles "Handsome" Kraus is selected the Apollo of our number. However, we still have to find the man equal to "Kirk" Hoagg, who can shovel coal without soiling his collar.

All of which goes to prove our proposition that we engineers are different. We have not the jolliest girl, but the jolliest girls; not the best student, but the best students; not the handsomest man, but the handsomest men. Superlative is plural among us.

Camp Davis

N early June we held our last meeting before leaving college and being resolved to mark the 1913 Engineers' camp by a generous display of originality, we proceeded to elect a "Devvisor of Sports." "Jinx" Otto was elected. At the same time most of us decided to make the boat trip to Cheboygan, and drive the remaining 18 miles to camp.

Under the supervision of "Peanuts" McGee, 35 of our number left Detroit, on the morning of June 30th. The passenger list contained the names of many sociable and pretty damsels and it was not long before every nook and corner on the boat was occupied by peaches and pairs. We organized a "Bum Army" and under leadership of "Dean" Gibbs, with flag, drum and bugle, marched out of the steamer at every landing, and held a dress parade, followed by a concert. An impromptu dance was staged on the boat that night.

About 8 bells "A. M." we landed at Cheboygan. "Peanuts" McGee, our General Passenger and Freight Agent, had rigs ready for us. There were two large hay racks for trunks.

The chief difficulty in our eighteen mile drive to camp lay in the lack of information of our drivers as to the correct route. As a result some of us went one way and some another. After a five hour ride those of us who stuck to the main road arrived on the shores of Douglas Lake but discovered to our dismay that we were on the side opposite from camp. We were able to hire a launch, and landed at our destination in time for "grub."

We were greeted on landing by three trampish looking "wops," who on close inspection turned out to be, "Bugs" Weaver, "Stan" Mills, and "Jack" Krause who had arrived in camp several days before, in order to get things ready for us.

After climbing "Handy Heights" for dinner we were initiated into the mysteries of putting up our tents, and knocking beds together and other incidents of camp life. About 8 o'clock that night every tent in camp was crowded with little black visitors, who were enthusiastic in welcoming us, and on being slapped for their persistent and insulting attentions made many biting retorts. The very next day we bought "Skeeter" netting with which we decorated our beds. "Doc" Honeywell began to amass a fortune selling "Skeeter dope."

The first day we spent in fixing things up, and exploring. Near the office tent we discovered a sign announcing that the road, which curved to follow the contour of the lake, and on which the double row of tents was situated was State Street. Off to the left was "Faculty Row," and to our right round the shore the brown tents of the "Bug Camp" could be seen.

Every morning at 6:05 the camp bugler "Mort" Hunter rent the air with a sweet irritating noise, which he called "reveille," but which resembled a mixture of sounds made by a flat wheeled trolley car taking a curve. Roll call was held at 6:20, at which time a motley crew of "Hunkies," "Wops," "Darbs," and "Swedes" lined up to answer to their names. "Nig" Kuhn and "Proc" Brown broke all records for dressing on the run. We breakfasted at 6:30, and afterwards came down the hill, made our beds, swept the sand from the floor, put fresh sand around the stove, and wrote letters until 7:20, when we went down to the office tent and reported for duty.

We used two methods of getting to work, walking and rowing. We worked hard until lunch time 11:30 to 12:30. When our work drew us far from camp, we carried "lunches."

out early we reached Topinabee about noon. We ate our lunch on the porch of a deserted cottage, after taking a swim in our Garden of Eden bathing suits. We met all the belles of the place, and were treated royally. Our camp attire must have captivated them, for they told us that they "could care for that."

By night we were fairly tired and hired the now famous "VanDoodle," boatman extraordinary, to take us back by launch to the shores of Burt lake at a point a mile south of camp. The ride through Mullet lake was great; we enjoyed the scenery along the winding Indian river, and we exhausted our stock of songs beneath the moon and stars while crossing Burt lake. Right at this point "VanDoodle" slipped up and landed us on the wrong side of the lake. He put us ashore and left us with the instructions to "Go up thar a mile and you'll find camp." We went but instead of finding camp after a hike over the surrounding country in the direction indicated, we found ourselves at the town hall of Topinabee, 8 miles from camp. "Peanuts" was for starting legal proceedings against "Van," while the rest of us held out for murder and sudden death. But time soon removed the sting of being stung and we forgot our grievance. We walked back.

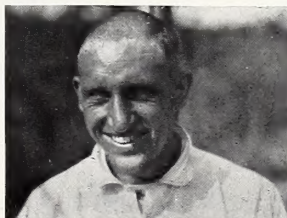

The first Sunday in camp "Mort" Hunter edited a camp newspaper, entitled "She's a Whale." The following Sunday "The Camp Davis Blackfly," an enlarged edition, put in its appearance, and "Nig" Kuhn joined the paper as Business Manager, printer, and editor. The paper was full of camp news, and bum jokes with an occasional drama or poem by "Ye Ed," who immediately went into hiding after the issue of his paper.

"Bob" McMath and "Ed" Lazear started an in-door baseball league and as we had eight parties in camp many lively contests were staged. Party No. 2 won the championship, and No. 6 "copped" the cellar bunting.

Not satisfied with being original along lines of amusement we carried it into our work, and as a result have presented the '14 engineers with a 25 x 60-foot harbor for storing their boats at night. We also built a concrete store house for beds, tools, etc., and, last but not least, started a Michigan Union. No, not a million dollar affair, but a big cement floor with our class numerals inlaid in colored cement at one end, and U. of M. at the other. We also made many minor improvements, and feel assured that the 1913 engineers have left a permanent record around old "Camp Davis."

We had a cracker-jack orchestra in "Stan" Mills, "Walt" Drury, and "Larry" Holmboe, the "Peerless Trio." Our sings were led by "Ed" Howell and all cheers by "Proc" Brown. Vaudeville shows were staged for the benefit of the several "Profs.", who visited us, Professors H. E. Riggs, C. Rich, and W. Butts. "Nig" Kuhn with his, "Baffins Bay" banjo stunt was voted "right there." "Marty" Martinez and Jaun Ramos in their "La Paloma," and "Hot Stuff" were head liners, while "Bob" McMath and "Jinx" Otto in their famous dance stunt, the "Bear's Delight" always brought down the "bunting."

Water races and diving contests were other features of camp life. "Larry" Holmboe, "Nig" Kuhn, "Ed" Lazear, "Bob" McMath, and "Norm" Shepard were all such good divers it is hard to pick the best one.

The hair tonic stunt was one of the most amusing affairs that happened in camp. On the 4th of July, about ten of the fellows had their hair cut very close, and "Ed" Lazear the closest of them all. One evening while an in-door game was in progress between parties No. 3 and No. 6 the game was stopped by "Jerry" Collins, who mounted a stump and blew several blasts with a horn, and announced that "Prof." Arthur Kuhn, the great hair and whisker fancier, was in camp with a tonic that would make hair grow on a herring. "Nig" mounted the stand and asked for somebody to step forward to try the great tonic. After much persuasion "Ed" Lazear stepped forward wearing his well known straw hat with the negative rim. He sat down on the stump and "Nig" poured the magic lotion on his hat. He had no sooner poured the fluid on, than "Ed" jumped like a shot shouting "it's coming, it's coming, it's here," and thereupon he pulled off his hat and instead of seeing a cropped head of blond hair, what was our astonishment to see a nicely parted head of black hair.

Party No. 5 buried a treasure, "A la Captain Kidd," and kept notes of the hiding place, giving the distances by paces, from various objects, and reading any angles turned off, with hand compasses. "Peanuts" was elected Captain Kidd and led the gang over miles of surrounding wilds. Party No. 4 was delegated to discover the treasure, which by the way consisted of a dead fish stuck through a lemon, and a decayed doughnut. Due to the scouting ability of big "Louis" Keptner they found it in far quicker time than it took to hide it.

CAMP STATISTICS WERE COMPILED AS FOLLOWS:

Cleanest man—Tie between "Ed" Lazear and "Bob" McMath.
 Prettiest girl—"Tommy" Doran.
 Handsomest man—"Buzz" Burr.
 Best diver—Tie between "Mort" Hunter and "Peanuts" McGee.
 Most congenial cuss—"Norm" Shepard, and he was.
 Best umpire—"Jinx" Otto.
 Prime fussers—"Shanks" Waite, "Doc" Honeywell and "John" Bonin.
 Best slugger—"Six" Christian.
 Camp cry—"Rye-Char," "Yea Bo" and "Speed."
 Best thing in camp—"Doc's store."

The last night of camp came all too soon. Vaudeville and musical stunts were put on by the talent of the place, and carrying out a precedent established by our immediate predecessors, each party danced around the fire, and with due and fitting ceremony cast into the flames its offering of "Holey Holeproofs."

Department of Law

HENRY MOORE BATES, Ph.B., LL.B., Dean

This department was provided for in the Organic Act in March, 1859. The Law School was opened on October 8, and included three professorships, which were later styled Marshall, Kent and Jay chairs. James V. Campbell, Charles Walker and Thomas M. Cooley were elected to fill these chairs, with Professor Campbell acting as dean. The first class was graduated in 1860. The original home of the school was the old chapel, and not till October, 1863, did it have a home of its own. The building was reconstructed and greatly enlarged in 1893. Again in 1898 it was practically demolished and rebuilt as it now stands. A fourth professorship was established in 1886, and named for the Honorable Richard Fletcher, of Boston. This chair was first filled by Ashley Palmer. The fifth chair was the Tappan professorship established in 1879, first filled by Alpheus Felch. In 1871 Professor Cooley became dean of the department. The original course consisted of two terms, each six months long, lasting from October through March. The instruction was entirely by lectures, and at the completion of the course the degree of LL.D. was given. In 1877 an entrance examination in English was required. In 1884 the terms were lengthened to nine months each, and in 1895 a third year was required for the completion of the course. The Practice Court as it now stands was established in the year 1892-1893. In 1912 the entrance requirements were increased to include at least one year of college work and an optional fourth year was added to the law course.

History of the Senior Law Class

HAVE we forgotten that day late in September, 1910, when we gathered in the halls of the law department, two hundred and seventy-four strong. The faculty was not impressed so much by our numbers as by the determined look and the unconquerable eye we presented. That nominating speech by Arthur Otto will always remind us of our first class-meeting. Well did Otto say of Gillmore, "he is as pure as the sunlight and as white as the driven snow." But, despite this speech, Howard Van Auken was elected our first class president. We held a purity smoker that fall and heard "Tom" Lanigan recite "Horatio at the Bridge" and then we knew why Tom had been elected a justice of the peace in Nebraska. At Christmas time we presented "Jerry" Knowlton with cigars. "The doctor has advised me to quit smoking and destroy all my tobacco," said "Jerry," "so I am going to burn up these cigars. That will be sufficient."

After Christmas vacation we prepared for our first examinations and few of us will forget that "exam" by Professor Drake in elementary law, with its "Indian God" case. Most of us survived, although some were badly bent. We all enjoyed Professor Bunker's class in criminal procedure where chalk flew about the room like bullets, enabling us to see "the end in view." Myrick D. Mead was acquitted of the charge of mutilating library books through the legal efforts of "Jonny" Corcoran and a biased jury and despite the efforts of R. W. Powers, attorney for the state. Our first baseball team won the department championship and before departing for our summer vacation we saw 19L13 displayed on sweaters and caps.

Hardly had we returned to school our Junior year when the very hills about Ann Arbor re-echoed with the shouts of "Boss! Machine!! Clique!!! Down with Strong Rule!!!!" Our second class election was on, and what an affair it was! Helping to make noise was one rosy cheeked Irishman from Niles, Michigan, to-wit: Edwin Donahue, who will long be remembered as a statesman of college days. Burke Shartel was elected over Lanigan by a small majority. But the noise of the election reached the ear of Dean Bates and he paid us a visit, complimenting us on our ability as scholars but suggesting that we use all the energy we employed in class politics for legal purposes. We heeded his advice and became so interested in our work that professors had to call a halt many times to our wonderful speed. Professor Bogle was obliged to tell the loquacious Mr. Cobb one morning in equity, "Wind it up Mr. Cobb. No matter where, but wind it up." Professor Clark repeated many times in common law procedure, "Gentlemen, don't all answer at once."

Our first football team won the department championship. Lyons, as manager, and "Pete" Nelson, as captain, gave us a basketball team which made history. Leon Barringer and his aggregation of baseball artists won the department championship and would have captured the final honors had it not have been for one Sisler—but no team could have beaten Sisler the way he was pitching that Saturday afternoon—not even with the rooting of Sanborn as an aid. By this time the class was heavily in debt, paying for sweaters to be worn by our victorious athletes. Our class meetings that junior year developed into parliamentary battles of which even Congress could not boast. We were the first class to adopt the constitution submitted by the student council. And so the Junior year passed away and became history.

We all returned the senior year prepared to dig in, and work. We realized the responsibilities before us. Even Alneer and “Morry” Meyers were seen working in the library. J. J. Kennedy was elected class president over “Art” Otto by a close majority. “Dick” Simmons was overwhelmingly and unanimously elected sergeant-at-arms. Then “Denny” Donovan had “some” football team. They were never scored against and captured the school championship by 29-0. Our Michigan Union dinners and dances were successful affairs. We helped to introduce the cane custom and came very near adopting O. L. Smith’s motion to wear “the peruke, the cane and the plug hat” as the class emblem. The mustache and married man’s clubs also played an important part in our Senior year.

During the past three years many changes took place in the law department. Venerable professors left us and courses of study were changed. But we all realize now, the courses of study were changed for our best interest and the future welfare of our alma mater. Also, lest we forget, “Joe’s” passed away. We listened to its swan song and, as we saw the old land-mark destroyed, we thought of the happy hours spent within its walls.

Individually, the class was active in college activities. “Art” Cohen, “Dave” Cohn and “Dike” Birney were prominent in college dramatics. Robert Beck wrote the Michigan Union opera, “Contrarie Mary.” “Ab” Dilley served on the board of control of student publications. “Bottles” Thompson, “Stan” Wells and “Jack” Rogers played on varsity teams. Barringer served as president of the student council. So both as a class and as individuals we made our influence felt at Michigan.

This concludes our college history. The final history of our class and the fame in store for our classmates will only be written in the far distant future. As we leave our alma mater and turn our eyes towards the future we are saddened by the thoughts of leaving these happy surroundings of college days, with its joys and friendships, and we may truly sing.

“The thoughts of you, dear Michigan
Will fill our eyes with tears.”

Last Will of Senior Law Class

BEING fully conscious of an existence which is soon to terminate, and the dissemination of this body as a physical entity, we deem it necessary and proper to make preparations accordingly.

Realizing that numerous gifts and powers of appointment to offices lie within our disposal and that such disposition should be made, we the Senior Law Class, known as the Class of 1913 of the Law Department of the University of Michigan, being of sane, safe and unprejudiced state of mind, of sound memory, and of an equitable and disposing disposition, make and declare this our last will, wish and choice of all things hereinafter named; and we hereby revoke all instruments or inclinations which may have existed prior to this time.

1. It is our first wish and desire that all feeling of disappointment and resentment on the part of the unfavored and disfavored be set aside. It was only after the most serious consideration of all the numerous persons eligible to the specific gifts within the power of our bestowal, that the hereinafter dispositions were made. Those who are unprovided for, we trust will seek consolation not in any feeling of lack of qualification, but rather in their good fortune to escape the burdens imposed.

2. We give and bequeath the office of "Handsome Man" to that exponent of beauty Solomon Blumrosen, who stands by consensus of opinion pre-eminently qualified to assume the duties and burdens of this office and to fill the same with all honor to his testators. But in case of default on his part we bestow the favors of the office upon "Dike" Birney, who might have received first consideration but for the fact that his yearly mustache often concealed his true qualifications. The absence of R. W. Powers from college one semester defeated his right to a higher consideration, but it is our wish that the office shall revert to him, on failure of the first named appointees to qualify. And to provide against the possible lapse of this office because a default of our appointments we nominate and confer upon "Dick" Simmons, "Norm" Reed, "Bill" Hoffman, and "Bill" Alfred the right to succeed in the order named, if it be necessary.

3. After mature deliberation of the merits of all parties eligible, it is our desire that the office of "Best Student" shall descend to Harlow Hurley, who by his conscientious efforts in certain lines and his daily attendance thereto justifies such a distinction. Fully appreciating the qualifications and right of others to this important office, we designate "Morie" Myers and "Don" Kiskadden, jointly to be his successors. And it is our further wish that if anything remains of this honor after the decease of the afore-mentioned appointees, said remainder to go to Charlie Gore, "Bo" Bowman and "Bill" Bowerman, without restrictions, to be shared in equally.

4. To the care and guidance of George Burgess we leave and bequeath the destiny of the office of most "Persistent Fusser." By his active participation and research along such lines he has shown all necessary fitness and ability to continue said office. Not overlooking the capabilities of "Corpus Delicti" Lanigan it is our will that he be made first assistant to the said Burgess, and that Bruce Laing, "Vic" Conklin and "Mac" McCarthy shall constitute a board of advisors of the same. But we wish to expressly deny all rights or claims that "Ab" Dilley, or "Jack" Butler may assert to this office, because custom has decreed that only those who engage in such activities in Ann Arbor shall qualify, and fussing to any nearby city or cities is not construed to be within the spirit of eligibility.

5. The honorary medal bestowed on the "Best Bluffer" is hereby bequeathed and pinned to James Cleary, whose efforts and indomitable courage in the designated vocation have been crowned with unparalleled success. To console a few others who have shown exceptional proficiency in the same pursuit and who should not go unrewarded, it is our will that "Charley" Avery, "Pete" Balkema and "Bros" Johnson shall be allowed to look upon the afore-mentioned medal occasionally and that "Cram" Royon, and "Bill" Kuhr be given the rare privilege of polishing the same.

6. As a mark of distinction to one who has so clearly distinguished himself that he stands head and shoulders above his nearest competitor, we give and devise the rights and privileges of "Class Freshman" to "Doc" Hess, to hold a life estate therein with full power to appoint his successor. To relieve the disappointed candidates from any impression that they were overlooked, we wish to state that the rights of Simmons, Hershman, Cobb and Romaine Clark respectively, to this office, were amply considered, but their chances for the honor decreased with their maturity, while the ability and qualifications of the appointee increased with the appearance of age and acquaintanceship.

7. We lament that the office of the most popular must descend to our posterity without the appointment of some one future incumbent. Appreciating the honor attached to this office the selection of the rightful and entitled heir was left to the populace at large. At an election held each member of the class received one vote, obviously his own, except O. L. Smith, who received two. Investigation disclosed that he misled a voter who was unable to understand that the vote was for the "popular" and not the "most unpopular," and consequently the vote was thrown out. Accordingly, there was no choice or preference and in view of this situation we give and bequeath to the entire membership of the class the privileges and the emoluments of the office, each person sharing according to his own opinion.

8. There is a prolific field from which to select a devisee to the office of "Shrewdest Politician." But in consideration of the efforts of a modern reformer who has struggled to make everything right on the campus that is wrong, we give and devise the aforesaid mentioned office to Burke Shartel to hold until he accomplishes his object. And as a reward to others whose stars have been equally as brilliant in the political sky, due either to the active participation in the political arena or abstinence therefrom, we give the remainder of the above office to "Bob" Mayall, "Bill" Mills, "Lon" Barringer, "Stan" Newhall and Van Auken as joint tenants. But not wishing Otto to go unrewarded for his commendable though unsuccessful efforts in the recent campaign in behalf of the common people against the successful aristocrats, we bequeath to him any spoils of the office that may remain after the afore-mentioned devisees have finished exploiting the same.

9. In default of the presence of the weaker sex in our midst from which to draw appointees to the offices of the "Prettiest and Most Popular Girl" and appreciating that these offices should not go unfilled it is necessary that appointments be made from our "pink cheek" contingency. Accordingly it is our will, though conscious of many defects in the beneficiaries, that "Johnny" Lewis, "Dan" Malloy, "Tom" Gilbert, Waller and Pelham shall share in the honor and proceeds of the above named office jointly. Efforts were made to influence us to bequeath to Kennedy and Schnellbacher jointly the office of the "Most Popular Old Woman," but as no such power of appointment was ever conferred upon the makers of this instrument, we refuse to commit ourselves.

10. Knowing the inclinations, fitness, and mutuality of taste, we give and bequeath the office of "Knocker" to Beck, Jacques, Tamme, McKinsty and "Jim" Donovan to dispose of in any manner which will best suit their purpose.

11. We will and bequeath to "Bottles" Thompson the honor of "Best Athlete," with authority to appoint Rogers and Cohn his joint or several successors. The athletic prowess of Bennehoff, Allneer, Bay and Brobst did not escape consideration but their claim for a reward appeared too remote to entitle them to a preference over the first appointment.

12. Appreciating that the office of "Snap Course" has ceased to exist upon the curriculum and consequently in the absence of a qualifying subject no action need be taken as to the disposition of this antiquated power of appointment.

13. Upon "Brigham" Young we give and confer the honor of the "First Person to Marry." But on failure to carry out the provisions of this bequest within a reasonable time the honor shall pass to the following persons in the order named until the same has been duly executed: Bie, Kelly, Fuller and Conley.

14. We give and bequeath the office and honor of the "Most Promising" to those in our midst who have dared to venture out upon the sea of matrimony which includes Murphy, Kennedy, Abbott, Beardslee, Dodds, Burkett, Smith, Clark, and et cetera, as tenants in common with power and authority to add any new recruits who may or have manifested courage in the same line.

15. We have no preference for the office of "Most Popular Professor." Prompted by a deep sense of appreciation, respect, and esteem for all persons eligible to this office we give and bequeath it absolutely to all members of the Law Faculty to hold jointly for ever and a day.

16. The residue of our property and powers of appointment whatever they may be we give, devise and bequeath to trustees to be held in trust for all those who have any feeling of disappointment or dissatisfaction because they go unprovided for by express gifts in our will.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, we, the Senior Law Class of 1913, have hereunto set our hand this twenty-ninth day of February, Nineteen hundred and thirteen.

SENIOR LAW CLASS, 1913.

Signed by the testator as his last will in our presence.

SILAS KENT.

MEDICINE

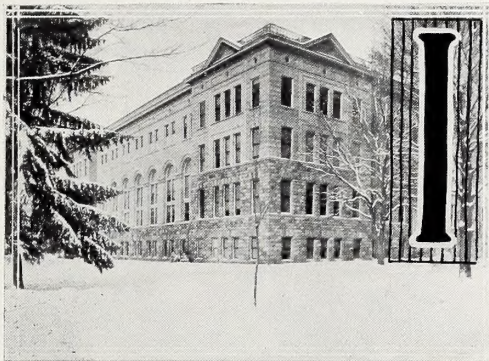

Department of Medicine

VICTOR CLARENCE VAUGHAN, M.D., Ph.D.,
LL.D., Dean

The Department of Medicine and Surgery was brought into existence by the organization of a faculty by the University on May 15, 1850. The Department formally opened the following October with Abram Sager as president. The course consisted of lectures which extended over a period of six months, from the first of October to the last of March. Clinical instruction was furnished from the beginning, and it was for the benefit of these clinics that various efforts were made to move the department to Detroit. However, in September, 1858, the regents formally decided against the Detroit project, thus insuring a more compact and unified department. In the year 1870-71, eighteen women were enrolled in the department. By this time the need of laboratory instruction was apparent, and as a result in 1872 the laboratory of Histology was procured. This was followed by one for Physiology in 1884, Hygiene in 1888, and Clinical Medicine in 1891. Laboratory instruction has always been very thorough. In the same year, the new University Hospital was opened, accommodating about eighty patients. In 1880 the course was lengthened to three years, and in 1890 to four years. About the year 1890 a six-year course leading to the degrees of A.B. and M.D. was offered, and the final step has lately been taken which requires the degree of B.S. before that of M.D. can be conferred. A valuable addition to the hospitals is that of the Psychopathic Ward which the Legislature some time ago provided for. In this way the medical student is furnished with an unusual opportunity for the study of insanity and nervous disorders. The new Medical building was completed in 1903, and is a remarkably well designed and complete structure. The hospital now provides more than three hundred beds.

History of the 1913 Medics

IN THE fall of 1907 about forty patients entered the department of Medicine and Surgery, all suffering from a desire to become followers of that much quoted and justly famed late Greek gentleman, Hippocrates. We were the first class to enter the first "University School" at Michigan, and we were, therefore, advised by our Alma Mater to suppress the juvenile exuberance of our "college days" and become real men and women.

The first symptom-complex from which we suffered was Anatomy and Histology. Paul Weisman was chosen to care for us during this distressing period. Anatomy was not so bad after that first "barbarous" day was over. Even those "stars" which loomed up so dreadfully in the distance were only inoffensive, respectable stars and not terrible comets as we had thought them. Histology was a little different but after all, in spite of our professor's attempts to weary us by his long hypnotic lectures and to confuse us by concealing the intricacies of our development with his pocket handkerchief, we advanced from comparatively insignificant "Anlagen" to fairly complete embryos. Physiology, which we acquired during the second semester, was a fairly benign disease, thanks to Dr. Lombard's ability and willingness to demonstrate personally the various bodily mechanisms. The second semester also introduced us to the "microbes" whose ability to destroy gelatine is simply marvelous, and who are presided over by the most imitated man on the faculty who is also the most logical.

"Is a bird an animal?" No. "Then it must be a vegetable."

The germs proved very troublesome and kept us in a terrible fever for a few weeks, but at the end of the year after an epidemic of exams, we were discharged perfectly sterile.

During the second year of our illness Max Marshall—efficient but bald—had charge of us. It was in this year that we contracted that most virulent of all distempers, Pathology. No suitable antitoxin for the malignant virus of this disease, which is nearly uniformly fatal or is, at least, followed by the most disastrous and dire "conditions," has ever been discovered. Nevertheless possibly on account of our strong constitutions and possibly on account of the attenuated character of the virus, due to its age, we, after several exacerbations of the disease, the worst of which occurred in June, recovered very little the worse for our experience. Part of our immunity during this year was doubtless due to the kindness and solicitude of the dainty irreproachable "Miss Lizzie Wiggers" or to the vernal atmosphere and beautiful surroundings which Dr. Vaughan furnished in Hygiene where everyone had great trouble in keeping his eyes upon the lecturer, or his mind upon the "pearls he cast." It was in this year also that Her Majesty, the "Queen," began to take an interest in our case. In vain did we try to persuade her that all drugs would produce "coma, collapse, and death" and that alcohol was not a drug but a very necessary food-stuff. The crisis was finally passed and after a very complete Status Praesens we were ready for the third year of our present trouble.

We decided this year to enter the University Hospital for more thorough and practical treatment. The first things we encountered were some distressing malarial parasites and horrible tape-worms of all descriptions which, however, we overcame, thanks to the drugs which were still being administered according to all manner of prescriptions by her "Royal Highness." We received this year a great deal of operative treatment from that most famous authority on hip-joint amputations and gun-shot wounds—"the medical man who operates." We had an efficient nurse, however, in "Molly" Wendel and having no locis minoris resistentiae and plenty of vis-a-tergo besides an abundant supply of pabulum; which was marvelously concealed in that most abstruse of all books, "The Principles of X"; our surgical wounds nearly all healed by first intention. At the end of the year many of us were left still suffering from tabes and submerged "complexes."

At last we have reached our senior year and the crisis of our illness is past. We thought we were suffering from pemphigus, but on further examination it proved to be only scabies. We are fairly normal in spite of various psychosis which we have experienced and a moderate amount of hydrocephalus. We have had our cataracts removed and we see; we have had our adenoids taken out and we now breathe freely. We have gained rapidly in spite of Lenhart's diet and Eiweiss Milk on which we have been fed. Nevertheless out of forty who came in 1907 only about thirty-two remain, and four of them, sufferers from incurable heart disease, are married. We hope, however, that under the guidance of our experienced president, "Chuck" Kennedy, those who remain may safely surmount the difficulties which confront them, and that at last in June no one will wish to stand between us and that land of our dreams where dwells the unsuspecting public.

Senior Medical Statistics

OUR coming is awaited by an old impatient world to cure it of the many ills from which it is suffering. Within the University, a reluctant faculty is considering whether or not they can afford to let so valuable a class depart and deprive the university of the glory which we have been reflecting upon it. In fact so reluctant is the faculty to give us up that it is anticipated that several of our number will be held over for consolation.

We do not venture to assert who are most beloved by the faculty in this respect, but we have our suspicions.

Be that as it may, there are those among us who are otherwise distinguished and after due and careful consideration we have arrived at varied opinions and conclusions, based on scientific investigation, a little prejudice and general impression.

Our versatility surprises us. For example McGeoch was not voted the handsomest man nor the best student nor the best bluffer nor the worst knocker, but he ranks high as a jolly girl, an estimable athlete, a shrewd politician, a genuine humorist, a fusser of high quality and stands way up in line among the first to be married. In short, a fine, all around fellow. We like him. Space limits us in running a complete list of the many whom we might place in the same class with him.

Kennedy is the most popular man, although Clark's large opinion of himself almost turned the balance in his favor. Had he been more considerate of the comfort of others he might have led. However he won the race of the most hopeless.

Our three wise men are "par excellence" Max Marshall, Billy Wilson and Herrick Neye. It is hard to tell who is the handsomest man as each man evidently voted for himself with the exception of Bahlman who voted "most handsomest."

Crankshaw is the Big Brass Knocker in the Knocker's Club and there are several common Knockers as Wurdell, Wood and Schlink.

Otis has trained so much at the expense of the comfort of others that they have voted him the class athlete. He would make a good soldier because he always gets to the front in double quick time.

Hay easily claimed honors as a shrewd politician, but no one voted him a statesman.

Very suggestive that Hans be considered the best bluffer, the most promising and one of the best students. Why didn't more of us bluff?

In spite of Weisman's good face he is voted the court jester but it always takes a wise man to be a fool.

Waterman is to be married first and the whole class is hereby invited to the wedding.

Unless fate intervenes the futures of the members of the class will certainly be illustrious. Their views and ours are most optimistic as to their coming fame. Not only have they mastered the ordinary courses and technique of their profession but they have taken advantage of all opportunities which were offered. They cheerfully declare that they have learned "to stave off creditors," which is an advantage in any profession; that filling blue books has become mechanical and is so simple a matter that they could guarantee success to all undergraduates who will pay for a few lessons in their technique. "Fussing" is not the least of their accomplishments and we must commend a perseverance which can surmount obstacles placed by an inconsiderate faculty and make possible the perfecting of this pleasant pastime.

The attitude of the '13 "Medics" toward their great accomplishments is most modest. In all sincerity and simplicity do they state that they have only "learned a little about great things"; and what they know is "not so much" as compared to what they will know when we are ushered into their dignified and renowned presence a few years hence. To be sure there are pessimistic moments when they feel that their tasks are too hard for them, that the way to fame is difficult and in the weary battles they "have learned the ways of the under dog." However, they are generally looking on the bright side, and the accomplishment of their victory.

Yes, they've liked Ann Arbor; they have liked and have been liked. Loyal to their profession, they place the Medical Department first and foremost in Michigan attractions. That, however, has not made them less appreciative of her many other beauties and advantages. Lovers of the field and green wood have grown attached to the "shady walks along the river" and breezy drives of the boulevards." They've gloried in the "moonlight canoeing" of the Huron and even have pleasant memories of the paddling on those fearfully and wonderfully constructed Ann Arbor "sidewalks." And the Majestic—it too is popular among them.

They've liked it all, they're going to miss it; but is it strange that when they're looking forward to a brilliant future, they should say that, "the out-going train" looks pretty good to them?

As the class passes out of the University life it leaves to the next class the task of improving on its shortcomings. Its members appreciate the kindness and help of the instructors and are grateful for their fellowship with the students. As they scatter to various fields of labor they will carry with them fond memories of Michigan and the spirit of the University will always live in their hearts. J. F.

DENTISTRY

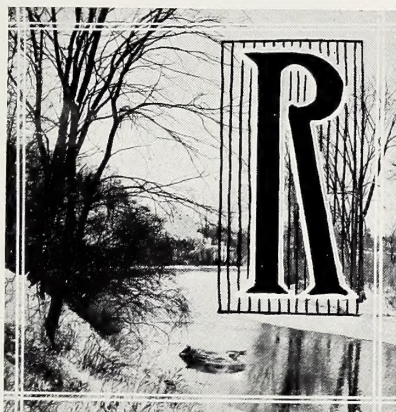

Department of Dentistry

NELVILLE SOULE HOFF, D.D.S., Dean

The first agitation for the creation of this department came in 1865, and in 1875 the Legislature appropriated $3000 per year, for a term of two years, with which to establish a school of dentistry at Ann Arbor, and in May of that year the regents took steps to provide for the department. Two professorships were created and first filled by Jonathan Taft and J. A. Watling. The department had its early existence under the general supervision of the Medical Department. The course consisted of two years' work, the terms being only six months long, October to March, but in the fall of '84 the terms were lengthened to nine months. In 1889 the course was finally made to consist of three years of nine months each. The degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery has always been given. The first accommodations were in the present Homeopathic building, then in the building now occupied by the Department of Civil Engineering, and in 1891, at the completion of the new University Hospital, the Dental Department occupied the old Hospital building. At this same time the Dental Society of the University of Michigan was organized, and assumed charge of the publishing of the Dental Journal. The new Dental building is undoubtedly one of the best equipped and most complete Dental buildings in the world, especially in its Technical Laboratories and Dental Operating Rooms. The Taft library is sheltered here and contains almost every book on Dentistry, and practically complete files of every Dental journal published. The Dental museum is also included within the building, and the odontological collection is especially strong—probably the largest and best of its kind to be found in any Dental college. It contains the collections of the late Professor Ford and of Dr. William Mitchell of London, England. The museum has been named the Ford-Mitchell museum.

History of the 1913 Dental Class

REGISTRATION day, Nineteen Hundred and Ten found eighty-four ambitious wanderers inquiring their way to the Dental building, proceeding timidly and cautiously, and ever aware of the impending something that makes the first weeks of the freshman year a nightmare.

Well do we remember our first assembly. Beginning with a medley of greetings and good advice, Dean Hoff proceeded to dispel our visions of retirement from our profession after ten years, by prophesying that a large fraction of the class might even desert their chosen profession to sell life insurance and abridged dictionaries. However, a rise of spirits followed his next announcement, that if caution, skill and perseverance were employed, we might hope to send our sons to a "prep" school, years hence. He added, that beyond a doubt this could be done if "investments" were well made.

For a while we felt our ambitions waning; but with the unfailing persistency of freshmen we plunged into the prosthetic "lab.," did things with plaster of Paris never equaled or attempted by the foremost sculptors of the past or present.

"Jim" Hannon accepted the presidency of our class, and harmony reigned supreme in the political field. Various detonations of hydrogen, seeking freedom announced our presence in the Chemistry Building, and marked our invasion into the camps of Dr. Lichty, who often told us, "We didn't think." Leaving general chemistry for the more advanced regions of Quantitative Analysis and Organic, we won the admiration of Mr. Cole and Dr. Gomberg by our unequaled records.

The long spring afternoons sent our thoughts Huron-ward. But few were the times when those thoughts of anticipation changed into realization. Many were the long warm afternoons that we pored over microscopes, and rare were holidays from work.

With our first class dance at the Country Club, friendships began to ripen and the class became a closely united body.

Our first vacation wrought havoc in dental laboratories far and wide and our class lost many of its young hopefuls. In the fall a remnant of seventy returned to exchange repartee with the College Inn staff and see the opening bill at the Majestic. Into Dr. Novy's "land of bugs" we were ushered, but the ruler of that region accustomed to handling troublesome organisms was on his guard.

Our class lost at this time one of its most beloved men, Athold O. Johnston, who succumbed to typhoid fever and whose untimely death we shall always mourn.

Genial "Babe" Adams guided our class political craft successfully through the tumultuous days that followed bacteriology. Those were the weeks we lost weight absorbing the physiological make-up of the anatomy while the long afternoons were spent in dissecting various hidden ganglia and laying bare the innermost secrets of man.

Looking back now with reminiscent eyes we can see the sun shining through the skylight and we feel again the insistent, luring call of spring floating in through the open windows on the breath of May.

Our picnic at Whitmore Lake, if portrayed in motion picture style would pack the house. The singles showed their superiority over the benedicts in spite of Eichelbarger's Olympian sprint. Lautman, Read and Geiger pulled off some stunts not listed in the records of athletics. A rainy afternoon stopped further exhibition of athletic prowess, but called into play the originality of "Norm" Stone, who staged an unsurpassed vaudeville entertainment on the third floor of the Lake House.

Following the picnic came the season of white trousers, band concerts and moonlight on the Huron, and our last summer's vacation was at hand.

Back to friends and the hills of Washtenaw again in the fall we lavished handshakes and wasted little time in establishing ourselves in the clinic.

Saturday afternoons and Sundays were our only recreation periods. Alarm clocks were always set for seven-thirty on week days, and the future assumed a rather dark and gloomy aspect. "Mac" MacUmbler, our president, aided by a crack social committee, framed up a series of dances and parties that helped to cheer up matters.

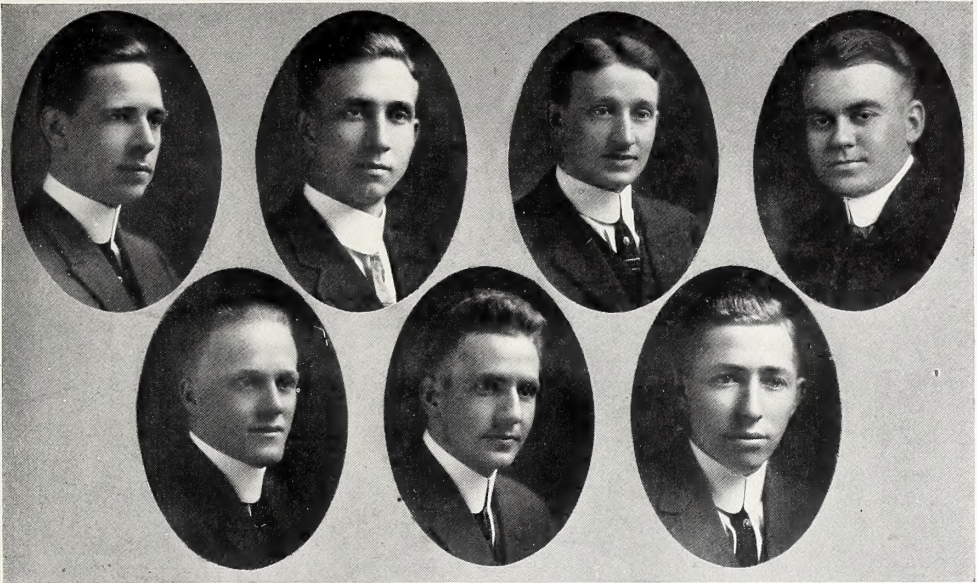

Exams, reports and a continuance of the Senior Dental Society marked the start of our last lap. The J-Hop that started things, dances, hard plugging, banquets and spring brought us to "Swing-Out" and we realized that our goal was in sight.

Good fellows in every sense of the word, our class won popularity without seeking it. Wilton, "Rammy" Graven and "Freddie" Smith kept an even pace with Schroeder, "Johnny" Johnson and Mudge in winning prestige among the fair ones. Foy went in for dramatics and made good in the "Bum Armie," while Stone and Quinn kicked up the sod on Ferry Field. Sargent carried off the honors as high jumper and Ballard, Snyder and "Oggie" Forrester dispensed harmony in the Varsity band. "Curley" Woleslagel represented the interests of our department in the student council.

So far nothing has been said of Miss Schiller, our only girl classmate. "Gladys of the Smiles," non-suffragetic, generous disposer of a sunny disposition and radiant personality, has shown us that girls can do things. She rightfully deserves the title of "Sister of us all."

Scattered, but with memories to linger long, we may open this book in the days to come, and pausing over a disjointed sentence in this brief history will turn to tell our inquiring children that it's a story of golden days spent at Michigan, our Michigan.

Dental Statistics

BOVE the twisted countenance of an expectant patient we poise our "yankers" and pause a moment to cast a hasty glance about the clinic room. The faces we have seen about us for three years, many of which we are soon to see for the last time, perhaps, are those of busy men. "Us dentists" are a busy lot. The laboratory, the clinic and the lecture room are our recreation centers. We usually connect one another only with molars, biceps, crowns and things of the trade.

In truth, it is with some surprise that we discover in ourselves a human side. After all, we are compelled to admit that there are among us those possessed of excellencies—excellencies they are, in one direction or another; that aside from being of the common genus, "dents," we have with us those who are greater than others in varied respects.

After due and careful deliberation we have made our selections and hand them down in this fashion to posterity.

On account of his pleasing personality, and all-around attainments, we are unanimous in conceding the distinguishing mark of "most popular" man to our Larned. We say "our" for he is nobody else's, and we are jealous of our possession.

The honor of being the most popular girl, of course, goes to our Gladys, and though the entire class were composed of girls, who better could we have chosen for—Ah! that hair! those eyes! Would that the '13 Dental Class could claim others like her. Then, too, not content with being the most popular girl, she also carries away the prize of being the jolliest girl.

American diplomacy compels us to bestow the favor of handsomest man on our only English cousin—"Herr" Monk. English, we say, but to quote him—"from choice only"—for half of his blood is American, but Monk says his greater circulation is English—so English he is.

The best student is, of course, Myron. Possessing the high forehead of intelligence and always seen with huge bundles of material for study, this young man of marked ability will surely put a high mark on future dental literature.

But hark ye! Oh Forrester! Oh Forrester! How did'st thou earn the title of the "worst knocker?" Tears of shame and remorse well to our eyes as duty compels us to pen this painful information, but thou did'st! thou did'st! As Dr. Darling says you have received your warning—take heed and profit thereby.

Our best athlete is, of course, he of high jump fame, Sargent. Would that more of us were built after his model so that we also might have the privilege of wearing our belt for a collar when the laundry is low.

Of course, we have our humorist. Stoney fills the bill to a "T" and deserving he is, too, for anyone who puts aconite and iodine on his head and gets away with it in the genuine stone style, easily wins. But Clear also has brought out his share of smiles and laughs and runs Stone a close second.

But when it comes to politics, "Jimmy Howell" is there to receive a reward. If the Bull Moosers had had Jimmy at the head of their campaign, Teddy surely would now be in the White House.

Off with our hats to the artist bluff—Savage. He has bluffed us and himself into thinking he isn't what he is.

Of course, Craven is the most persistent fusser and with Wilton as a mate, the two make a pair that is hard to beat.

It takes no fortune teller to predict the bright future that awaits the most promising Myron and McKenzie. Spacious, elaborate offices and a long line of patients with lots of money and bad teeth, hastening to doors under great electric signs spelling the names of Myron and McKenzie—it's a sure thing!

Ballard, who has fiddled his way into the heart of many a fairy, will be the first to get a life mate. Gladys will be the first girl to jump over the matrimonial fence, and appearances say, very soon.

Under the doctrine of aconite and iodine and the principle of obtaining and maintaining asepsis, Dr. Loeffler has made for himself a warm spot in the heart of the class and has been chosen the favorite professor.

Mac———enzie, the hopeless! Search as we would, Mac, your case has proved beyond surgical or other aid. Dr. DeLuxe, etc., has proved your undoing and we are tempted to say, has put your case beyond redemption. But, nay, nay, Mac! while there's life there is hope. Here's wishing you a long life!

PHARMACY

Department of Pharmacy

JULIUS OTTO SCHLOTTERBECK,
Ph.C., Ph.D., Dean

The school was organized and made independent of any other department in the year 1876-7. Before that time a course in Pharmacy had been given in the Chemistry building under the general supervision of the chemical faculty. The requirements demanded for admission were in general a full and complete High School education. At the present time they vary, depending on whether the student is a candidate for the degree of Pharmaceutical Chemist, which is a two-year course, or whether he is candidate for the B.S. of Pharmacy, in which case the requisites are practically those for the B.S. degree in any other department. In 1880 the Chemistry laboratory was completed, and this was used as the home of the department up to 1910. With the completion of the new Chemistry and Pharmacy building the school has moved into new and commodious quarters with splendid facilities for special work. Practical work is obtained from the botanical gardens, where the principal plants for medicinal use are grown and studied. Frederick Stearns and Co., Detroit, offer a fellowship of $350 a year, which has been maintained since 1895. Appointment is made by the Board of Regents upon recommendation of the Faculty.

Senior Pharmics—Class History

IN ONE of Holmes's Pullmans, with one eye on the carpet bag which we had placed on the driver's seat at his command, and the other "peeled" for hazers, we, the Pharmacy Class of 1913, one autumn day in a distant age, made our way into the realms of learning at Ann Arbor. As the horses tugged up State street our cinder-filled eyes anxiously regarded everyone whom we passed. Humanity was made up of two classes of people that day—foe and friend. Anyone who approached another with a confident smile and a ready handshake was a foe. We felt that instinctively in our bones. Anyone who slouched around like a German waiter at an Irish celebration on St. Patrick's day was a friend. He had to be.

Gradually we became used to things. For the first time we experienced the mingling of fear and joy that goes with a gentlemanly conducted hazing. We took a bath and bragged about our experiences. Some of us got the hazing minus the joy element and took extraordinary baths, and bragged extraordinarily to even the balance.

We went down town, drank our sodas, visited the "vaudeville" shows, admired Joe's from the outside, and in a word, got into the swing of things. Little by little our stock of collegiate information grew. We hid our campus tickets, learned that chemistry was not taught in the U. hall dome, that the mysteries of botany were not propounded in Barbour gym, that the story that Prexy rang the chimes was a joke and so forth and so on.

After following the campus squirrels for a week we began to realize that attending a university, especially the pharmacy department, was something more than learning the Boston and abusing one's vocal chords at a football game. We were told that our afternoons, one to five, were to be spent amid the inspiring vapors of the laboratory. Green with jealousy, we sought means to dynamite the boat house on the Huron.

But life in the laboratory grew interesting after one or two fellow workers had succeeded in anointing each other's clothes with Elixir of Ammonium Valerianate. When we had ruined the coat of one suit and the pants of another we dug up some old clothes for "lab." work.

One day we were informed that we would have to organize. We assembled and deliberately and with malice aforethought elected "Alexander" Bergy to guide the destinies of our verdant days.

Shortly afterwards the Prescott Club made life interesting at a smoker. Then, for the first time, we saw the human sides of our faculty men and upperclassmen. After some preliminary shyness we were convinced that none of the upperclassmen had ropes and hazing implements concealed about their persons and that the faculty men had left their class books at home. We then had a really enjoyable time.

We lived through that glorious time in life when we returned to Squeedunk, the idol of the fair ones, the joy of our parents and the pride of our townsmen—and the first Christmas vacation became a pleasant chapter in our life history. Returning we tackled the exams and launched out upon the second semester. Spring recompensed the dreary hours of the laboratory and we actually found an opportunity to spend a dreamy evening or two on the Huron.

Most of us took advantage of the summer months to attain some practical knowledge of our life work and after tackling the real problems returned in the fall with a keener appetite for information.

Smaller in numbers, but bigger in sympathies and earnestness, we once more set to work for the final lap. N. B. Lawrence was assigned to succeed Bergy to take care of the "other" things while we went after chemistry with a vengeance. We began to get the real stuff, recognized it and started to learn all there was to be learned about it.

"All work and no play——" threatened us and we took a determined step against becoming dull. The antidote for this consisted of dances and dinners in which we grew to know more about each other than the mere fact that we were going into the same profession. In fact the senior year for many reasons proved to be the most congenial and attractive, despite the added work.

But all good things come to an end sooner or later and so our college career approaches the "finis" mark. It is with no little sadness that we wait the day when we must say farewell to our Alma Mater. We feel that she has given us much while we have returned but little. It is in the future that we hope to reward her by striving to give her cause for just pride in the Pharmacy Class of 1913.

HOMEOPATHIC

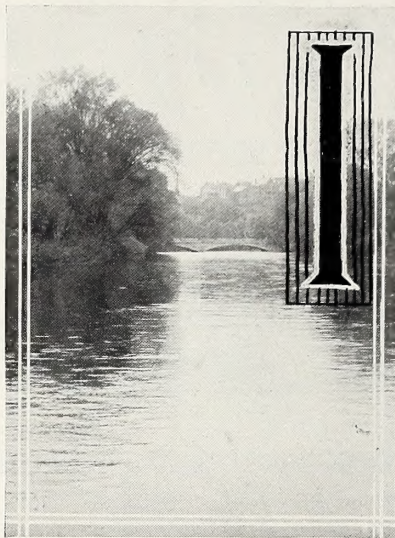

Department of Homeopathy

WILBERT B. HINSDALE, M.S., A.M., M.D.,
Dean

The first petition for this department came to the Legislature in 1851, and in 1855 they required that the University should support a professorship of Homeopathy. In April, 1875, the Legislature made an appropriation of $6,000 a year for the organization and maintenance of a school of Homeopathy at the University. This the regents organized the following fall, starting it with two professors, and provided that it should conform to the rules of the University proper. The attendance fluctuated greatly, starting in 1876 with 24. From that time till 1895 there was more or less dissatisfaction expressed concerning the school. In the summer of 1895 it was completely reorganized, with a new faculty, since which time it has enjoyed a prosperous existence. It now has very commodious quarters and the new Homeopathic Hospital in the immediate vicinity of the campus is especially well equipped and one of the finest structures connected with the University. A special feature of this department is the Pathogenetic Laboratory which is especially well adapted for experimental work. In connection with the Hospital there are two nurses' homes under the charge of an experienced Principal. The term of study of the nurses' training school extends through three years at the end of which time a certificate of graduation is given.

Senior "Homeops"—Class History

IN THE fall of 1909 the "Homeop" Freshmen arrived creating considerable excitement. It was confined chiefly to the hackmen and baggagemen who almost came to blows in contending for the honor of delivering us and our baggage to the then mysterious realm in the vicinity of the campus. Our approaching departure similarly caused considerable stir among merchants and others equally desirous to serve our graduation—is there such a word?—needs.

Between these two periods of animation there was a marked lack of the unusual and extraordinary in our seemingly all too brief career in the university. What we accomplished was not of the nature of that which can be labeled and put away at this time for others to regard and admire or censure. It remains for posterity in noting the works of the 1913 "Homeops" in that bigger realm for which we have prepared, to tell the substance of the attainments of the class as it lived and learned for four years at Michigan.

We were a motley crew. From the north, the east, the west, the south we came. Some of us brought along degrees from colleges; others had attended preparatory schools; but most of us set to work with a high school diploma to represent our foundation. We were fresh and willing. We came here for something to do. We got it—thanks to Doctors Streeter and Huber—it came in liberal quantities. And we did it.

Because we had to, we elected a president the first year. We chose Fellows. The next year we chose Wilson. As juniors we decided that more wisdom among our class officers would prove beneficial so we elected Sage as president. (This is no joke). As seniors, nobody of a lesser degree of ability than "Bill" Gramley was fit to guide our destinies.

Our numbers were augmented in our senior year when a neighboring institution closed its doors and we received the lion's share of its students. While these were with us but a short time, we learned to look upon them with the same feelings that we would have entertained toward them had they run the entire course with us.

Many of our number showed skepticism towards the old adage of single blessedness and took unto themselves wives. We know that many others would have done likewise, but some of us lacked the courage and others of us—something else.

Taken as a whole, our four years have been calm and happy. We shall always look back upon them with pleasure as they radiate their everlasting happiness upon us through cherished memories. And the sadness at their departure is sweetened only by the nearness of that great arena for which we have been preparing and which now opens before us at the same time inviting and challenging.

row, there arises one victory, one day of joy and spirit, that eclipses all defeats and writes another chapter in the indelible book of memories that every grad and undergrad will treasure forever.

Such must be the memory of the Cornell game. Bursting forth in the glamour of the big home game, sweetened by past defeats, embellished with the thought of faith justified, and thrilling in its plays, it will outlive the rest of that season and will make its memory a joyful one. Critics may call that 1912 season a failure, rivals may call our attention to its sorrows, but in the minds of those who saw it and gloried in its monument to college faith that love that honors even the van-lege attitude that tastes only

LIKE hope, enthusiasm and college spirit spring eternal in the human breast and each victory wipes clean the slate of past sorrows and regrets. The sorrows and defeats of college life live but for the instant but the joys and victories live with the college and become a part of its tradition and history. And it is but natural that it should be so, coming as it does in the very heyday of life, in that brief but full period of the exuberance of youth, away from the cares of after years, and filled with unsullied belief and faith. Out of every football season whether it be one of victories and joy, or one of defeats and sor-

Michigan had known two bitter defeats before that Cornell game. At Syracuse, after a whirlwind start, something had gone wrong and the bitter news of defeat had traveled fast upon the heels of rumored victory. At Pennsylvania a start that promised to overcome all previous defeats had been turned into an ignominious battle against the inevitable, ending with a last minute victory for the easterners and turning an Ann Arbor celebration into a dull day of sorrow. Injuries, loss of men, and defeats and close scores had piled one on another until it seemed that nothing could stand against the very tincture of despair. But through it all existed the unflinching belief in the team, and the unfailing confidence in its ability, the unquenchable spirit that Michigan could not be beaten again. It was as severe a test as the undergraduate body of any college ever stood, and yet on the eve of the last game, the confidence and faith were as strong as ever.

When the stands slowly filled on that November afternoon there was a feeling of determination in the air. Students, in the solid and steadfast belief in their college poured in with almost a menacing attitude, yearning for the chance to celebrate, yet not fearing to look upon defeat. Old grads, remembering only the victories of past years, looked only for another Michigan gain, firm in the faith that was theirs from former years. Visitors, gayly bedecked and thinking only of the sight of a great game streamed in, strangely contrasting in their air of joyfulness, the quiet yet forceful manner of the Michigan men. As for the team, none but those who fought through that long afternoon can tell their feelings, their hopes, but never their fears.

It is not easy to describe a football game. The mere story of the plays, the mere routine of the formations fail to satisfy the craving of those who saw the contest. The pen must catch and depict only the feelings of the crowd, the flow and ebb of the tide of victory, the change in the tone of the cheering, the thumping of the hearts in and blue of Michigan mounted skyward. Early in the first half Michigan scored and its shouts of victory tore the air. Then the tide turned and the Wolverine stands rocked to the hoarse cries of defiance, of imploring its team to hold and stop the onrush of the Cornell men. Then in the last half minute of that half, while the Cornell stands screamed for speed and listened fearing the referee's whistle, and while the Michigan stands bellowed the fierce challenge of a crowd at bay and hoped and strained forward to hear the welcome whistle, a red jersey plunged across the last white mark and the score was tied.

the stand, the unbidden groans changing to the almost frantic cries of victory. It must follow the teams up and down the muddy, snow driven field, not in yards, nor gains, nor kicks, but in the human passions and feelings, in the joys and sorrows, in the hopes and fears.

And so up and down that half frozen field went Michigan and Cornell hopes. Now the crimson of Cornell flashed in the air, seeming almost to indicate its supremacy; then the maize

Again was the battle resumed and until far into the shadows the ball was carried up and down the field. And up and down the field, following close behind that little leather ball surged the hopes and cries of the vast crowd. A moment's hush, a long toss, a single cry and a helmet tossed into the air and Michigan was leading again. It was then that the "Big Red Team" in its last hope, opened up in scattered formation and tried all the tricks of the game. It was then that the Michigan stands followed breathlessly every toss of the ball, hoping for the final shrill whistle. Gradually Cornell was forced back, until under their own goal posts they punted. Far up to the center of the field went the ball and Huebel started back. Time and again he squirmed out of red sleeves, time and again he seemed to go down, till at last, and even before the anxious stands could realize it, he had crossed the Cornell goal. Another minute's play and it was over.

The Penn game was forgotten there. The Syracuse defeat existed only as a thing almost beyond memory. The despair of the season only added sweetness to the day. Old grads beamed as if their very presence and faith had done it. Students poured forth into the crisp air the stored up shouts of victory. Visitors looked on, wondering what there was in such a little thing. And so that game will stand, to be written on the book of lore as a victorious season, to be referred to in pride, to be remembered in a joyous glamour, and above all to commemorate the indefinable, indefinite, yet omnipresent and over powering college spirit.

The 1912 Football Season

TO attempt to diagnose the football season of 1912 would prove a task worthy of a Camp. To attempt to point out the causes for its apparent failure would only bring a storm of protest and denial. And to place the blame, if indeed it could be done, would bring forth difference of opinion. Suffice it to say that from the standpoint of standing and from the standpoint of a team, the season was not in any sense a real success.

At the start of the training season prospects were propitious and it was freely predicted that Michigan would have a team to boast of. With a plenty of veterans, with excellent new material, and with Yost still in charge, it gave promise of a real success. But somewhere in the making, in the individual and team play, and in the brain work, it collapsed. It has been said that the playing was more or less mechanical and that that individual diagnosis of the opponent's plays, that instantaneous development of new defenses, and the real football sixth sense were lacking. As a piece of machinery the team was perfect, but when they were confronted with a new problem or were temporarily nonplussed, its mechanical perfectness vanished.

The season started with the usual contest with Case. With apparent ease the Ohio team was defeated and although the team play at that time was more or less unperfected, still it showed the earmarks of a great team. With M. A. C. the first half was a nip and tuck battle, but the last half was a walk away for Michigan, the latter scoring almost at will. Then came Ohio State, scenting victory for the first time and bearing the reputation of one of its best teams. The score was fairly close and it was a good game but in the opinion of many it did not represent the real strength of the teams, as Michigan proved far superior to the southerners. The first half of the season was over and it had been a success. But as yet the Wolverines had not faced a team of equal calibre with a repertoire of strange plays. It had not been called on to diagnose.

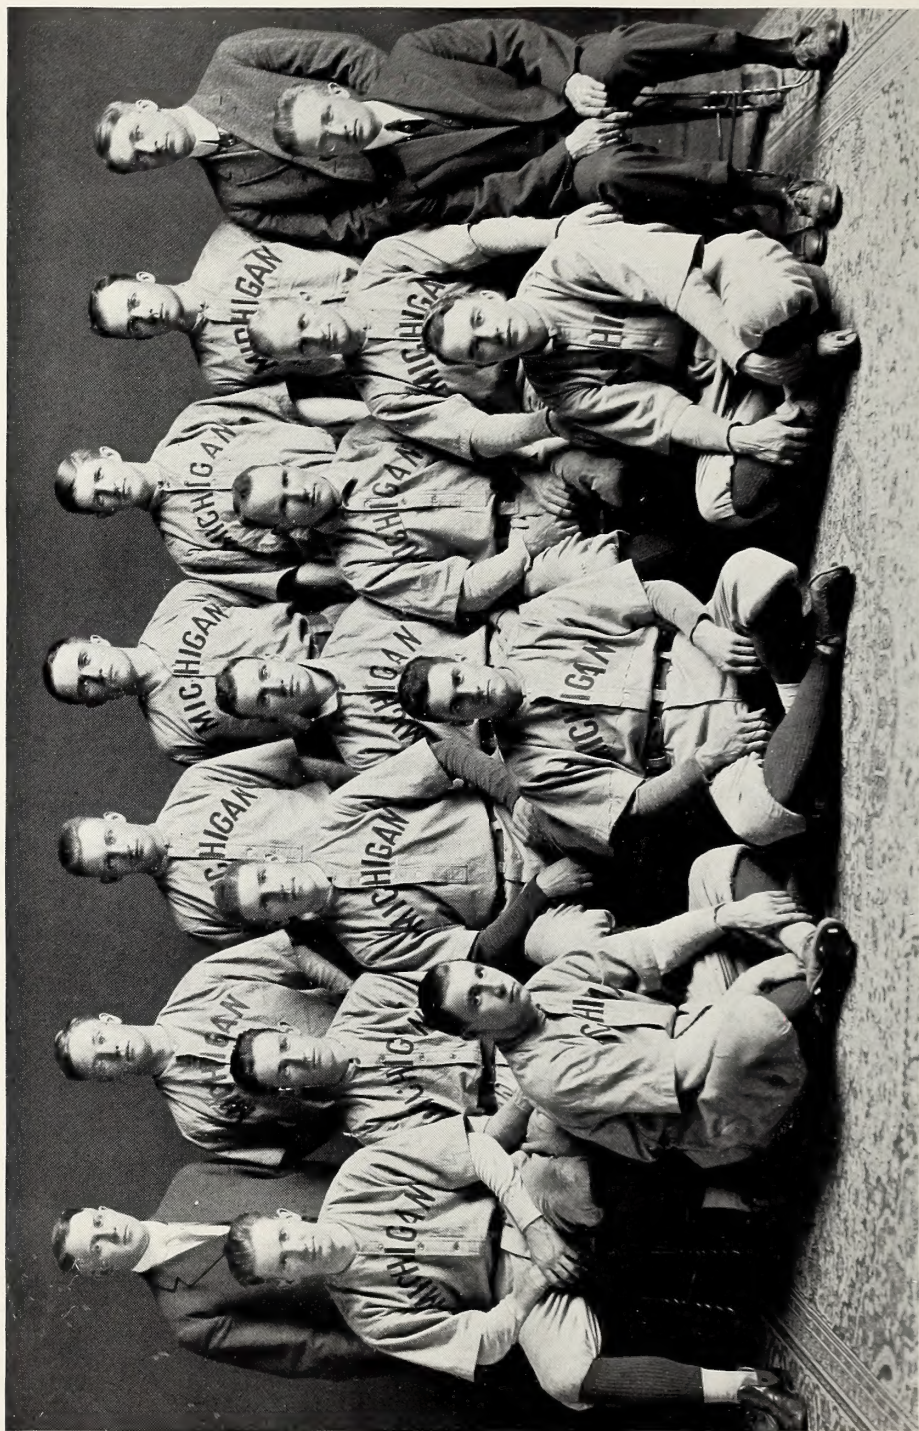

Then came the Syracuse game. Perhaps some excuse may be made for injuries, but it cannot excuse the whole thing. Sweeping the Syracusans off their feet in the first quarter, the Wolverines found themselves fighting even at the end of the first half and were defeated in the second half by a team that was admittedly inferior. It was the first defeat and yet it but proved a forerunner of what was to come. South Dakota came next and until the last three or four minutes of the game, the practically unknown western team outplayed and outscored Michigan. A piece of football luck in almost the final minutes of the game gave it to the Wolverines, but it was a narrow squeak. The worst defeat was that by Pennsylvania. It will always stand as sort of a mystery, one of those unexplainable games of which every sport boasts. With a lead of twenty-one points in the first half and with the Quakers apparently routed ignominiously, Michigan was defeated utterly in the second half. It was here that the mechanical perfectness appeared. As long as Pennsylvania failed to diagnose Michigan's plays they succeeded. But when the Quakers knew them they were easily stopped. As long as Penn. tried only simple plays the Wolverines stopped them, but when the easterners used strange formations and new plays Michigan failed to solve them and went to defeat.

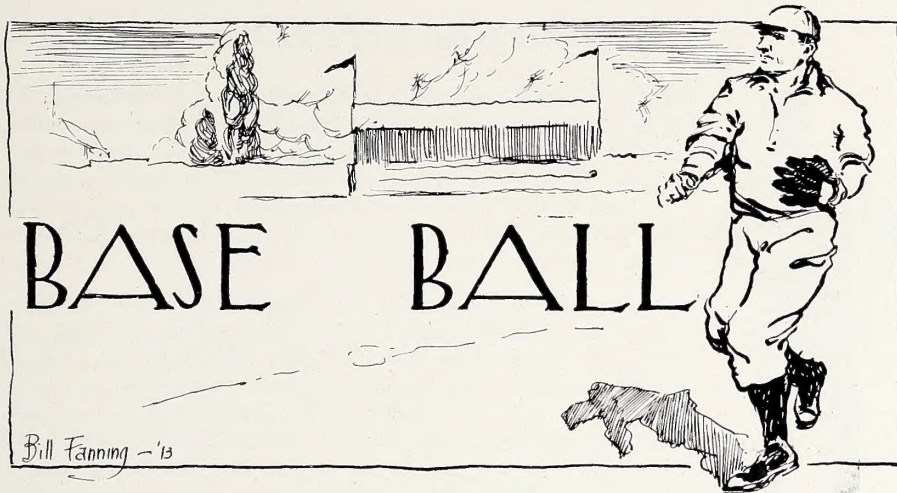

The final game was with Cornell. It was probably the best exhibition of football that Michigan gave the entire season and the Wolverines clearly outclassed the Ithacans. It was a spectacular game to watch, and yet not wonderful as far as football went. But this final victory gave Michigan at least a ranking, though it was low, and partially made up for the former defeats.

And so the season must go down, strange and unexplainable, yet perhaps proving a lesson for future years. Perhaps Michigan underestimated its opponents, certainly its play became loose when it had a lead. And when once that looseness appeared it seemed impossible to tighten up. Perhaps it was too mechanical, too complicated and without enough of the spectacular and sometimes effective individual playing. It will remain a question for individual solving, but will remain a season that cannot be boasted of or placed in the credit column.

Baseball Season of 1912

BAD weather early in the spring and a most disastrous eastern trip served to pull the 1912 Michigan baseball team below the standard that had been set by Varsity nines in past years. While the circumstances surrounding the entire season were not shielded in any way by the Goddess of Luck, still the past season did not bring out as much real diamond material as could have been wished.

The season opened with the southern trip after the team had had no practice out of doors. Despite this handicap, the Wolverine invasion of Sunnyland was creditable. It must be admitted that the nines encountered on that trip were not of the caliber of some of the eastern teams, but the teams were not weak aggregations. The journey resulted in nine victories out of a possible eleven and the formation of a team that bid fair to carry the Maize and Blue with credit.

Opening the home schedule shortly after the spring holidays, the Varsity met several strong nines including Syracuse, Case, Western Reserve and Kentucky State. Syracuse was walloped by the Varsity, but the joy of victory was wiped out by reciprocative measures on the part of the eastern aggregation later in the season. All in all, this portion of the season was successful as it resulted in seven victories and only two defeats. "Smiler" Smith was the hero of the twirlers in these contests, while Captain Mitchell, Bell, Munson and Lavans did the biggest part of the stick work that batted the team to victory.

Calamities, however, always come immediately after triumphs. The eastern trip was a funeral procession in which the only bright spot was the defeat of Rutgers. West Point, Princeton and Pennsylvania handed the team clean beatings and demonstrated their superiority on the diamond with a force that will not soon be forgotten.

In the Princeton game, the Wolverine squad was treated to a magnificent exhibition of nerve and college spirit when "Smi" Smith pitched most of the contest while suffering with appendicitis. Finally, he was forced to leave the game but not until he had put up a game fight against pain and clever batsmen.

Although downcast by its defeats, the team was not disheartened and their return saw some snappy ball games on Ferry Field. M. A. C. proved too strong and the Farmers carried off the honors. Then the Alumni came out for a contest and Varsity had a little pleasure at their expense.

To complete the season, the team took on Pennsylvania for a return series of two games at the time of the Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Celebration. In these contests, the Wolverines had a break of luck and captured one of the games. Baribeau pitched the contest which was a clean victory and served as a fitting climax to a season which was hardly pleasant.

Olympic Games

IN THE Olympic games of 1912 America again justified her title as athletic champion and in bursts of speed, endurance and skill, quite outclassed the older Europe. In the gathering of athletes in that Stockholm arena were men from every section of the world, from practically every university and college. Hence it was only natural that Michigan should contribute to the gathering, and more than contribute, should furnish men who played an important part in that athletic struggle for world supremacy.

Three men from Michigan represented the United States and each of the three made a wonderful showing. Ralph Craig, the wearer of the "M" who held amateur records in this country, proved himself the fastest man in the world in the 100 metres dash, winning easily and tying the world's record. Ralph Rose, whose name is linked with Michigan, put the shot farther than any other man and brought in another first for his country. Captain Haff, this year's leader of Michigan's track squad, won a place in the finals against runners from all over the world.

Such is the record that Michigan men carried abroad with them. Their performance sheds its glory first on their country, but Michigan is not forgotten and the memory of their work will ever remain dear to Michigan men and will serve to further uphold the athletic supremacy that has always been Michigan's.

Track Season of 1912

HAFF

THE loss of men like Craig and Horner made vacancies in the 1912 track team that were hard to fill, and as a result the showing was not as good as that of the previous year. However, the record was one worth making when the lack of real track meets and the keenness of the competition in every contest in which the Wolverines were represented are taken into consideration.

The first Varsity contest was at the Pittsburgh relays. Here the Wolverine quartet bid fair to land the honors until the last lap when Captain Gamble injured his ankle and the third place fell to the Michigan team. This contest was disastrous as it deprived the squad of their captain, the injury keeping him out of the contest for the rest of the season. After the usual Varsity meet and the fresh-soph contest in the "gym," the team went east to Syracuse, and to defeat. Hampered by the strange track, the Maize and Blue aggregation was unable to show its real form and the final score gave the victory to the Orange, 52 to 25. Kohler and Sargent took the only first places in this engagement, capturing the shot put and high jump.

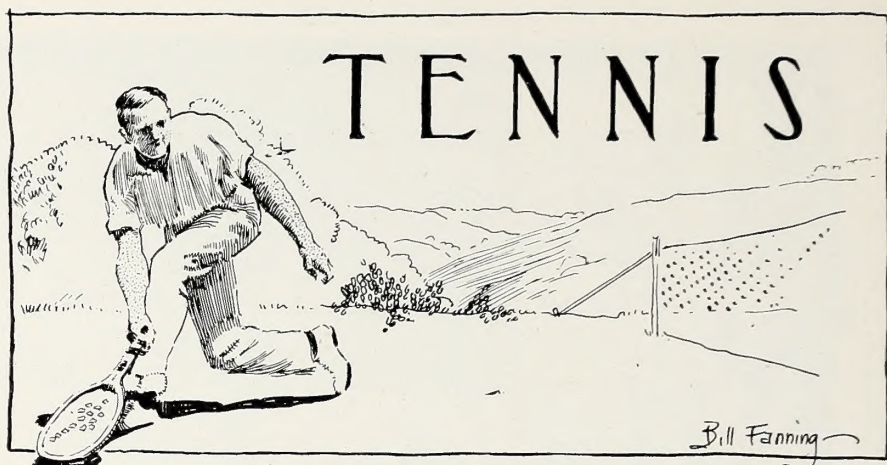

But the Wolverines recovered with the visit of Cornell to Waterman gymnasium. In one of the fastest meets ever staged on the local floor, Michigan trounced the Ithacans, 41 to 31. Three "gym" records were badly shattered in this engagement. Cornell aided by Messrs. Fritz and John Paul Jones put the "dents" in the "gym" records for the pole vault and half-mile, while Sargent for the locals skipped over the bar at 6 feet, destroying the mark made by a Cornelian in a previous meet.

While this section of the country was recovering from the bite of the severe winter, Pennsylvania breezes grew warm enough to warrant the annual relay meet. The Wolverines went to Philadelphia with a goodly aggregation, but rain and a muddy track prevented a real good showing. The relay quartet drew second place but the big surprise was the failure of Sargent to place in the high jump. Mud was responsible for this but it did not lessen the disappointment. Syracuse was the next opponent on Ferry Field, and this time the easterners discovered the real strength of Michigan, much to their sorrow. The final score was 83 to 43. "Jimmie" Craig followed his brother, Ralph, by taking first in all the events he entered, while Reidpath of Syracuse changed the time in the Ferry Field record for the quarter mile.

To this team, whose record in the early season was not first class, came the great honor of capturing third place in the eastern intercollegiate. When this meet is viewed as a contest in which the pick of the country competes, a third place means no small honor. Craig, Haff, Kohler, Haimbaugh and Sargent were the boys who turned the trick, and it was their efforts in this meet that lifted Wolverine track athletics for that season to its high standard.

Sadness, however, came again to the team at the close of the season in the announcement that Dr. A. C. Kranzelein, who for two years had directed the squad, would not return this year. The team felt his loss keenly but their fears were soon alleviated by the coming of "Steve" Farrell, formerly Ohio State trainer, who is giving his attention to the team this year.

THE tennis season of 1912 proved an unusually successful one for the Wolverine racquet wielders. Of the six contests, in which Michigan participated, the team managed to win all but one, and this one defeat registered against it was not a fair test as only three matches were played. For the first time in three years the team did not take an eastern trip, but instead, took a four days' journey into Ohio.

In the tryouts, Captain Thorward inaugurated a new policy which should materially strengthen the team in the future. He first picked a squad of seven and from them chose the Varsity.

The prospects of the 1913 team are exceedingly good as Captain Thorward was the only man of the Varsity four lost by graduation.

The Spring Contests

THE Spring contests between the classes of 1914 and 1915 produced numerous surprises. In the face of a long-standing precedent, the Sophomores carried away premier honors in the second day's events and thus annexed the long end of a 2-4 score in the annual Spring contests.

The tug-of-war contests, as in years past, were held Friday afternoon across the banks of the Huron. The Fresh heavyweight and the Soph lightweight teams both underwent the pleasure of fording the cooling waters. The afternoon ended with the score 2-1 in favor of the Sophomores.

On Saturday morning the 1914 men clearly showed their superiority by winning two of the three obstacle relay races, and were barely prevented from capturing the pushball contest by an unforeseen occurrence. In the middle of the third quarter, the big leather sphere blew up and as the hole caused by the explosion was too large to be mended, hostilities were suspended and the contest declared a draw.

The Class of 1914 has made a unique record for itself by winning the Fall and Spring contests in both its Freshman and Sophomore years.

Fall Rush

The fall rush between this year's Freshman and Sophomore classes resulted in a decisive victory for the older class. The Freshmen as usual defended the three flag poles, divided into three sections, and grouped in solid masses around each pole.

After the first year men had massed their forces, the Sophomore contingent arrived on the field, formed itself into two columns, and at the given signal marched upon the first pole.

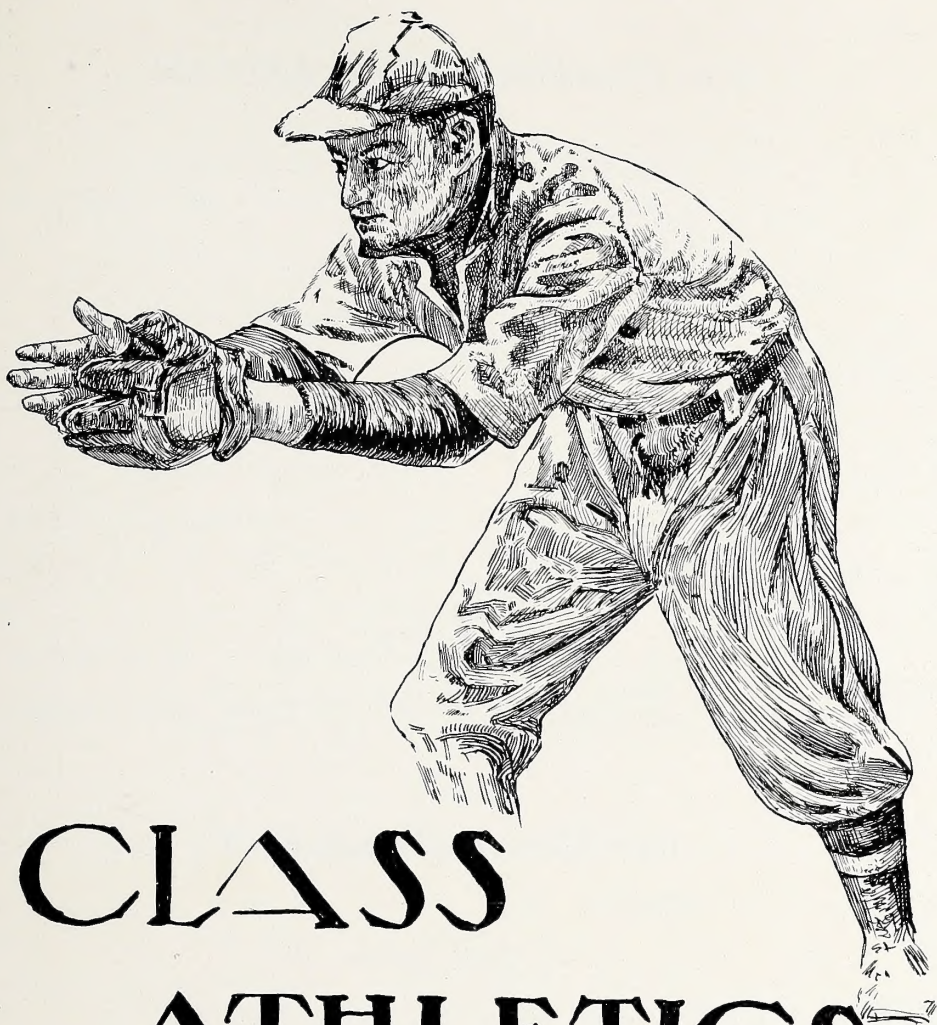

The inexperienced Freshmen were soon overpowered, and only three minutes elapsed until the flag was in the possession of the Sophomores.

The struggles at the second and third poles were merely repetitions of that at the first, and the rush terminated with the capture of all three flags. The honor of successfully defending the second pole, however, was awarded to the first year men because of the violation of one of the contest rules by the Sophomores.

Immediately after the rush, the Sophs completed their victory by winning the cane spree by a score of 17 to 5.

Third Annual Field Day

OMEN'S athletics, during the long winter days, were confined to routine gymnasium work and basketball which concluded with an indoor meet. The sophomores won with 138 points. The freshmen were a close second, running up a score of 130 points. The events consisted of contests in rope climbing, rope and window ladders, broad and high jumping, rings, saddles, relay racing and dancing. The freshmen carried off the inter-class basketball championship, defeating the seniors by a large score in the final game.

With the opening of spring, athletic activities were transferred from Barbour gym to Palmer field. Here the Third Annual Field Day was held, May 25, 1912, and the finals in outdoor sports. Mary Bonner, the senior tennis representative, defeated Grace Babcock, the sophomore, in these finals winning the tennis championship. In a hotly contested hockey match, the upper-class team defeated the freshmen by the narrow margin of three to one. Archery also occupied part of the afternoon. After the games many of the spectators and participants remained on the field for a basket picnic, which was followed by the evening celebration. The seniors in caps and gowns opened the festivities by marching in double line, forming a block "M" and their own numerals, '12. Sophomores then gave a May-pole dance, which was followed by fancy marching by the juniors and figure formations with flower-covered hoops. Folk dancing by the freshmen, which closed the program was one of the features of the evening. The odd and brightly colored costumes ornamented with tinkling bells made a very attractive picture. By the time the four class "stunts" were over, darkness had fallen on Sleepy Hollow and the bonfire was lighted. The women each holding a lighted Japanese lantern marched from Palmer field to Barbour gymnasium and back to the clubhouse, forming a long line of fantastic, shadowy figures in the light of the swinging lanterns. At the field the lanterns were extinguished and the day's festivities were over.

In the spring of 1913, there still remains a debt of about one thousand dollars on Palmer field. Dances, candy sales and dramatic entertainments are being planned to make up this deficit. A pageant to which admission will be charged is contemplated to take the place of the annual field day, the proceeds of which are to be given to the Palmer field fund. Another source of income for the field will be part of the athletic fee which the University women pay to the athletic association. This money will be used for the maintenance of the field.

New tennis courts are planned, two of which are now in the process of construction, and a hundred dollars has been given towards a new clubhouse. Although this is but a small beginning, enthusiasts of women's athletics hope to see, before many years have passed, a new clubhouse built on a transformed Sleepy Hollow, and an iron fence surrounding the field, made beautiful by landscape gardening, and containing hockey and basketball fields and numerous well kept tennis courts.

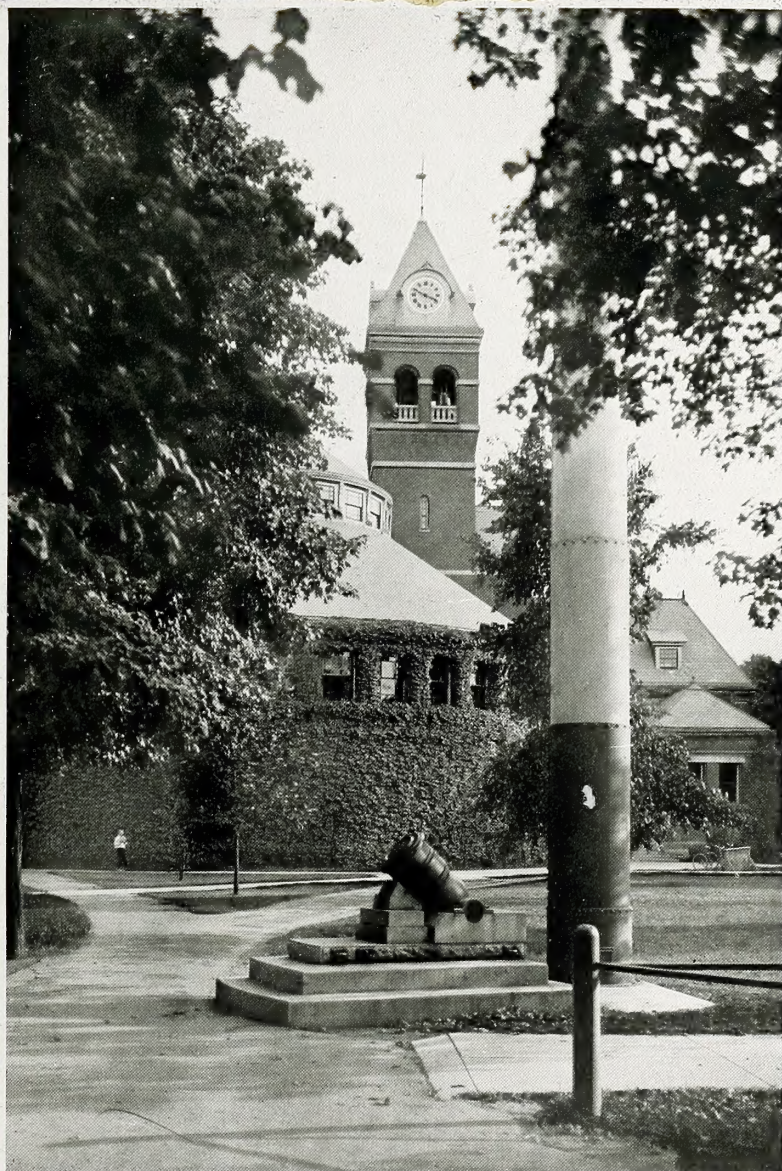

With greater facilities for outdoor contests, enthusiasm for athletic sports will increase and Michigan women will have before long a beautiful, well-equipped field, in constant use by those ardent in the pursuit of health.

BOOK IV CAMPUS

GENERAL UNIVERSITY ORGANIZATIONS

DON M. COTTRELL

The Michigan Union

WITH a membership of 2,420 for the year 1912-1913, the Michigan Union has not only practically doubled its 1911-1912 registration, but has also jumped into pre-eminence as the largest student organization of its kind in the country. In addition to the large increase in numbers, the Union has also made appreciable strides in other directions, and it now stands in an unchallenged position as the keystone of under-graduate activities, the social headquarters of the campus, and the sponsor of the principal movements for the general improvement of the student body.

Just why the Michigan Union has elicited more support this year than formerly is not difficult to determine. For the first time in its history, this organization now has a hall of sufficient size to accommodate large numbers for such occasions as dances, dinners, smokers and meetings. The weekly membership dances, held every Saturday evening in the new temporary annex, are generally attended by a capacity crowd, while the monthly membership dinners have drawn fully twice as many men as those given last year in the old cramped quarters. This awakened social life has attracted new members—men who in the past have felt that they did not receive sufficient return for the $2.50 annual membership fee. In addition to these advantages, the Union has issued for the first time a uniform Michigan button to its members.

Under the name of a "Rooming and Employment Bureau," the Michigan Union has instituted this year a committee whose duty it is to facilitate the securing of rooms by students in the fall, and the providing of jobs for students throughout the year. Several hundred members were given information regarding rooms last October, when the bureau began its work, and since that time the employment committee, which keeps regular office hours, in a special room at the Union, has placed 200 men in positions where they may earn all or part of their college expenses. General canvasses of the city are made at intervals, at which times an effort is made to list all boarding houses, rooming houses, and places requiring student help, and from the information secured in this manner, an accurate tabulation is made. Aside from being a material aid to one particular part of the student body, the establishment of this bureau would seem to indicate the growing inclusiveness of the Union, through which that institution is coming to be looked upon more and more as a sort of paternal intercessor, taking care of the general welfare of Michigan men, and in every possible way promulgating student interests.

In line with its other new activities this year, the Union has recently undertaken the organization of a Michigan Canoe Club, to have charge of aquatic sports on the new artificial lake up the Huron river. A committee has been appointed to investigate the feasibility of the preliminary scheme, and if expected results are attained the club will materialize this spring.

The annual football smoker, given by the Union in the combined gymnasiums following the football season, was attended by the largest number of men ever present at a similar event in Ann Arbor. The principal speech of the evening was made by Ex-Governor Chase S. Osborn. As usual, cheering and music formed a stellar portion of the program, and the usual cider-and-doughnuts were served in profusion.

In previous years the Union has staged its annual musical opera before the Christmas recess, but this year it was not held until the last of March. The later date gave those in charge of the production, and those taking part, better opportunity for preparation, and the presentation of "Contrarie Mary," the 1913 opera, showed the results of the more extended arrangements. The operas are depended upon as one of the chief sources of income for the upkeep of the Union, and the last show did not fail to maintain precedent in this regard, as much as in the general excellence of the performance.

In point of buildings and equipment, the Michigan Union is still far from being altogether satisfactory, and the officers of that organization feel that they cannot most efficiently meet the needs of the situation until they secure the new $1,000,000 clubhouse, plans for which were proposed some time ago. With such a building as that desired, adequately endowed, many advantages could be offered which are now beyond the scope of the present conditions, and the attractions would be so great that no student or faculty man could afford to forego membership in the organization. Where one pool and one billiard table must now suffice to furnish all the amusement of that nature which the Union can offer for nearly two-thirds of the men in the university, a large number of tables would be provided, and bowling alleys, a swimming pool, and other recreative equipment installed.

The plan inaugurated last year of allowing students and others to become life members of the Union, on a participating deferred-payment plan, is bringing good results. During the school year of 1911-1912, 84 such memberships were taken out, while this number has been raised to a total of 216 already this year. The money obtained in this way is placed in a sinking fund looking toward the erection of the new Union building. Three regular life memberships were recorded during the first half of the present school year. The men who became thus permanently affiliated with the Union were: Lucius L. Hubbard, regent of the university; Clarence A. Leightner, '83, and Captain Inman Sealby, '12L.

The following table shows the steady increase of the Union membership roll, from 1907 to 1912, with the sudden jump in the figures for 1912-1913:

Forestry Department

IN JANUARY, 1912, the forestry department was threatened with one of the gravest crises in its history. At that time Professor Filibert Roth was appointed dean of the forestry department at Cornell University, to begin work in September, 1912. The news caused no little consternation, for it was not a call but an appointment and everything seemed settled. An exodus of forestry students from Michigan was not only discussed but definitely settled upon. Juniors and seniors decided to leave en masse. The men in the field as well as in the university felt that the end had come, for no satisfactory substitute could be determined upon.

Fortunately the Board of Regents and President Hutchins came to a sudden realization of the value of the forestry department to the university. The whole affair had progressed so quietly and smoothly that hardly anyone had realized how the department had grown from a small handful of men in 1903 into a live school of 200 in 1910-1911; from the small beginning when course one had four foresters, a few literary and one or two law students, into a course of 30 "straight" foresters and an enrollment of 140 students in the various other courses of the department. It was also discovered that the department was a valuable addition in other ways since it brought yearly about 200 men into the literary department and added as many as 25 students to the graduate school.

The Regents and President Hutchins were surprised at these facts, and felt highly gratified and impressed with the work done here and the excellent records made by the men both for themselves and their Alma Mater in their important field of work. And not the least came the realization that the department was one of the most useful ones in demonstrating to the people that the university was ready and capable of taking up the new and useful problems of the day, and of preparing men for their solution. Accordingly the board decided in no uncertain terms that the school must stay and must grow in keeping with the other departments of this great state institution. Men to take Professor Roth's place were looked for, but fortunately circumstances took such a turn that the professor felt justified in resigning his new position and agreed to stay here.

At once the board approved a general plan of re-organization. During the interim Professor Hill resigned, leaving only one man on the faculty. A new corps of instructors had to be gathered, and again fortune favored the university. The new faculty is composed of Professor Filibert Roth, Junior Professor O. L. Sponsler, Assistant Professor P. S. Lovejoy and Instructor Young. This brings together a variety of experienced students and foresters such as has long been needed.

Professor Sponsler is a native of Ohio, although he has lived in Michigan since early boyhood, graduating from this university. For a time he taught forestry at the University of Nebraska and he has had field experience in Ohio, Wisconsin, Idaho and British Columbia. His reputation as a teacher and organizer is well known.

Professor Lovejoy brings with him the genius and experience of a vast amount and variety of valuable field work. He changed the Medicine Bow Forest from one of the most poorly managed in the country to the present model of efficiency. He also made a fine record on the Olympic Reservation, which has more standing timber than exists today in the entire state of Michigan.

Mr. Young is best known to the members of the department as a worker, a man of good sense and one who keeps things moving.

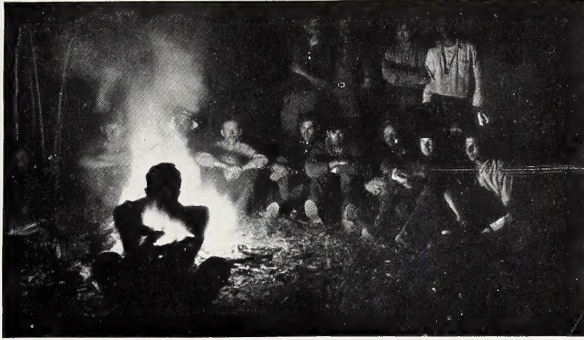

This faculty of four men with Mr. Pottinger and four other assistants, contrasts strongly when compared with the two man faculty in the days of Roth and Mulford—the days of hopes and promises, when two men were asked to do the work of five. But the change does not end here for the department now has at least one room to work in, and is not asked to move four times in one winter as it was in the days of Professor Hill.

With the increase in faculty has come a relative increase in equipment. The library has been enlarged as well as the collection of lantern slides. Two lanterns have been added, a set of testing machines for work in the new course in wood technology and a forest nursery of over half an acre. The testing machines are specially designed and will be used every year by the students of forestry in the regular course in timber study. The new nursery is located opposite to Ferry Field and contains ground well suited for the work for which it is intended. It will be used chiefly as an experimental station and a laboratory.

In keeping with the new changes and additions in the staff and equipment comes a re-organization of the entire forestry course, which will go into effect next year. The courses in forestry as re-numbered total 26, in all covering 64 hours of college work. Besides strengthening the course in silviculture by changing it into a double course of silvics and silviculture, with 14 hours total work, there have been added courses in woodlots and parks, forest improvement, protection and administration, silviculture of particular species, forestry for engineers and one course for teachers. The course in conservation is continued and will be lengthened. In addition to this general strengthening changes have been made in the courses dealing with botany and surveying, which will add materially to the value of the work.

With all these changes in administration and policy the students themselves have not been idle. The Forestry Club, meeting twice a month, has been permanently organized. Although primarily a social organization, many practical benefits accrue from it, through the short informal talks given by the members of the faculty and "old grads," who, returning from the field with a wealth of practical experience, are able to leaven the theory of the classroom with a vast amount of practical knowledge. Along with their regular meetings the club has held four smokers where talks were given by prominent professors on the campus along the line of their own special work. For the first time in the history of the department the post-graduates formed a class organization. Meetings were held every two weeks for the purpose of debating the technical questions of the profession.

The annual camp-fire held in Cascade Glen at the beginning of the college year proved to be a great success. In spite of the threatening weather 125 foresters got together for the biggest social event of the year. The embryo woodsmen assembled in time for a regular camp dinner, after which the big council fire was lighted and all gathered around for the speeches. Faculty and students talked and sang until the big fire died down to a heap of glowing embers, and finally dispersed with the song that all Michigan men sing whenever they are assembled.

But all these changes in student organization in equipment, in courses and in the faculty only half tell the story. There is a new spirit in the forestry school of the University of Michigan. There is a real enthusiasm, a spirit of work with the student and faculty alike, plainly noticeable to everyone. And this spirit has gone abroad. It is among the men in the field, and all feel that a new era has come to forestry at Michigan.

"The Society of the Sigma Xi elects only Faculty members, graduate students, and senior undergraduate students, engaged in the study of sciences. Elections are made by the Faculty and graduate members, on the basis of achievement or aptitude in original scientific research. Undergraduates are elected only in the second semester of the senior year, and in number not exceeding one-tenth of those eligible. All senior students enrolled in the Departments of Engineering and of Medicine and Surgery are eligible; also, those senior students in the Department of Literature, Science and the Arts, who have taken at least one-half of their work during the last two years, in the physical, biological, or mathematical sciences."

The Year in Oratory and Debate

THE record of Michigan in oratory and debate for the year 1912-13, though not a victorious one in all contests, is one of which Michigan men everywhere need not be ashamed.

The twenty-second annual contest of the Northern Oratorical league was held at Evanston, Ill., May 3, 1912, under the auspices of Northwestern University. The University was represented by Louis Eich, '12, as orator, and Albino Z. Cy Sip, '12L, as alternate. The subject Mr. Eich's oration was "The Law's Delay." All the universities were ably represented in the contest. Mr. Eich spoke last on the program and delivered his oration with great feeling and effect but failed to win one of the honors. The representatives from Northwestern University and the University of Minnesota received first and second honors respectively.

The fourth annual contest of the Michigan Peace Oratorical association was held at Lansing, under the auspices of the Michigan Agricultural College, March 29, 1912. The University was represented in this contest by Percival V. Blanshard, '14, recently appointed Rhodes Scholar for Michigan. His subject was "The Roosevelt Theory of War." The result was a decisive victory for Blanshard, which gave him the right to represent the State of Michigan in the Inter-State contest, held April 26 at Monmouth, Ill. At this contest Blanshard met the representatives from Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska. He was awarded first honor by a majority of the judges. This made him the choice of the Northwest for the National Contest at Mohonk, New York, against the Eastern group of states.

The National Contest was before the delegates to the National Peace Conference, at Lake Mohonk, May 16, 1912. Blanshard spoke with remarkable conviction, directness and power. By unanimous decision of the five judges he was awarded first honor, and received testimonials to the amount of $225. He also was invited to give his oration at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and at New York University and Vassar College.

In the contests of the Central Debating League for 1913, honors were divided among the three universities competing, though Michigan received more judges' votes than either of her rivals, the score standing Michigan 4, Chicago 3, and Northwestern 2.

The question chosen for debate this year was as follows: "Resolved, That the plan of banking reform proposed by the National Monetary Commission should be adopted by Congress."

Michigan's affirmative team met the University of Chicago at Ann Arbor, January 17, 1913. The University was represented in this debate by Paul S. Blanshard, '14; Lyman S. Hulbert, '14L, and Bartel J. Jonkman, '14L, with Werner W. Schroeder, '14, as alternate. The debate was unusually interesting for it was hotly contested from the first. The Michigan team was given the decision by unanimous vote of the judges.

The negative team journeyed to Evanston to meet Northwestern University on the same evening. The men representing Michigan were Solomon Blumrosen, '13L; John S. McElroy, '13L, and Floyd W. Moore, graduate student, with Edward W. McFarland, '13, as alternate. The men acquitted themselves with great credit in a close debate, in which the decision of 2 to 1 was awarded to Northwestern. As the affirmative team won in each of the three contests it is felt that the question was not an evenly balanced one.

MICHIGAN'S RECORD TO DATE

In the twenty-two contests of the Northern Oratorical League, Michigan has won nine first honors, two seconds and four thirds, against six other western universities, more than twice as many honors as any one of her competitors. Seven of the first eight contests were victories, six of them in succession, a record unexcelled in such contests.

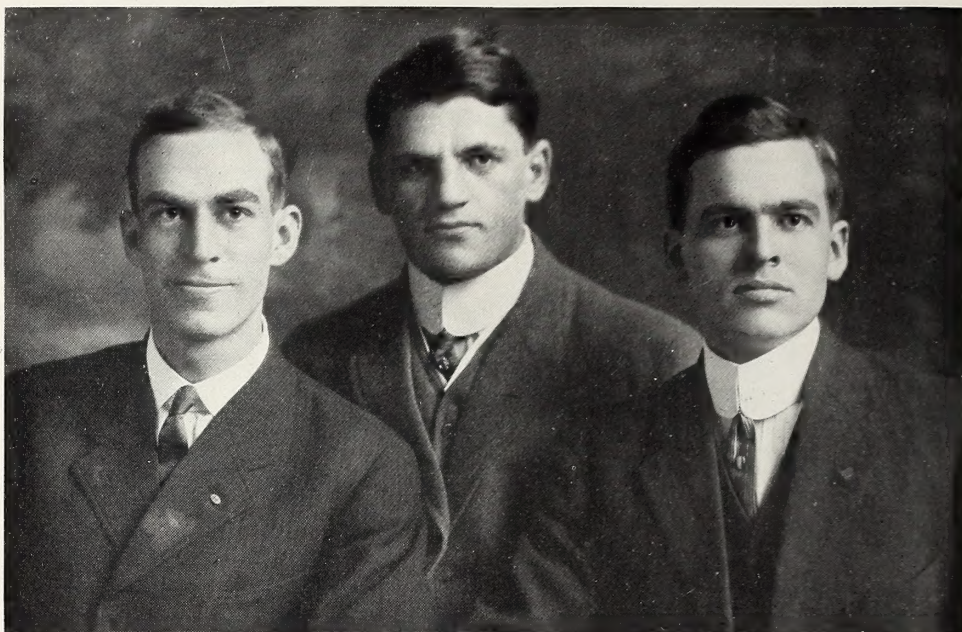

The University has represented the State of Michigan in three Inter-State Peace contests, winning one of them and also, last year, the National Peace contest.

Michigan has taken part in forty-two intercollegiate debates, winning twenty-nine of them. Her record is: Four of the five with Wisconsin, eight of the thirteen with Northwestern, three of the four with Minnesota, three of the four with Pennsylvania, and eleven of the sixteen with Chicago. Only one debate has been lost by unanimous decision; twenty have been won by unanimous decision.

Packard "Six" Carriages

"38" "48"

Both Maximum Service Cars
In Essential Qualities The Same
These features are common to both models

Left Drive

Avoids the necessity of stepping into the street.

Electric Self Cranker

Easily and simply operated from a driving position.

Centralized Control

Complete mastery of the car from the driver's seat. A compact control board at the finger tips operated with the slightest effort.

Electric Lighting

Controlling switches at the centralized control board.

Magneto Ignition

A high tension dual ignition system, with magneto and storage battery entirely distinct from the starting and lighting equipment. Insures Packard efficiency at all speeds.

Six Cylinders Perfected

Flexible, efficient, silent, giving motion with no sense of exerted power.

Dry Plate Clutch

Proof against "burning" and certain of engagement without "grabbing."

Short Turning Radius

The Packard "38" turns in a street forty-one and one-half feet wide. The Packard "48" turns in a street forty-five feet wide.

Hydraulic Governor

Automatically regulates throttle opening. Avoids "stalling" the motor in crowded traffic; prevents motor racing when the clutch is disengaged; affords agreeable uniformity of road speeds without requiring skillful use of the accelerator pedal.

Forced Feed Oiling

Especially desirable for "sixes." An auxiliary system feeds oil directly to the cylinder walls and is automatically regulated for different power requirements.

Six-Inch Depth of Frame

Prevents body distortion and cramping of doors.

Size of Crank Shaft

The diameter of the "38" crank shaft is $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches; of the "48," $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches. Ample size of bearings insures maximum period of service without refitting.

Specifications in Brief

"38"

Six cylinders, 4 by $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches.
38-horsepower A. L. A. M. rating.
Actual brake horsepower 60.
Wheelbase touring car 134 inches.
Tires, front 36 by $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches, rear 37 by 5 inches.

"48"

Six cylinders, $4\frac{1}{2}$ by $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches.
48 horsepower A. L. A. M. rating.
Actual brake horsepower 82.
Wheelbase touring car 139 inches.
Tires, front 36 by $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches, rear 37 by 5 inches.

Constitutes a very simple and absolutely perfect solution of problems involved in coupling alternating-current machines in parallel without danger of sensible disturbance of circuit conditions.

The indications are infallible.

There is only one object to observe.

The movement of the pointer is smooth and certain; it inspires confidence.

It indicates exact synchronism within 1 deg. of true phase coincidence over a wide range of frequency and voltage.

Send for catalog giving full description of this unique instrument and also our full line of A. C. and D. C. instruments for Switchboard, Portable and Laboratory Work.

Demonstrations of the operative characteristics of these remarkable instruments may be observed in our New York Office and also in the offices of Selling Representatives in Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco and Toronto.

Where the Cool Breezes Blow

THE LUXURY OF A LAKE TRIP

Where will you spend your summer vacation? Why not enjoy the charms of our Inland Seas? Rest after work is necessary to human endurance and holidays are a wise economy. The only enjoyable and economical outing is on the Great Lakes. All important ports are reached regularly by the steamers of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company. These boats are unrivaled in point of elegance, comfort and quality of service, the perfect freedom afforded by the salon and promenade decks, the commodious staterooms, luxurious furnishings and excellence of cuisine makes life aboard these floating palaces a solace to the weary mind and body.

WHERE YOU CAN GO

Daily service between Detroit and Buffalo, May 1st to November 1st. From June 10th to September 10th, Steamer City of Detroit III, 500 feet long, and Steamer City of Cleveland III, 444 feet long, two of the largest and finest side wheel steamers in the world, operate between above points. Daily service between Detroit and Cleveland, April 15th to December 1st. During July and August daylight trips will be made Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday out of Detroit, and Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday out of Cleveland. Two boats out of Detroit and Cleveland every Saturday and Sunday night during July and August. Four trips weekly between Toledo, Detroit, Mackinac Island and way ports; from June 25th to September 10th. Special steamer from Cleveland to Mackinac Island, the Historic Summer Resort of the North Country, making two trips weekly, stopping only at Detroit every trip.

RAILROAD TICKETS AVAILABLE

Tickets reading via any rail line, between Detroit and Buffalo or Detroit and Cleveland, will be honored for transportation on D. & C. Line Steamers in either direction.

Send two-cent stamp for illustrated pamphlet and Great Lake map. Address L. G. Lewis, General Passenger Agent, Detroit, Mich.

"A THOUSAND MILES IN AN INSTANT"

" * * * As the voice carries the thought and as the thought is THE MAN, the telephone actually carries a man a thousand miles in an instant.

"The man of today, sitting at his desk in New York City, can work, and he can be with his brain in Boston, in Chicago, in Baltimore, Philadelphia, a hundred cities, in the course of a single morning.

"The Telephone * * * frees men's minds, allows the thinking spirit to leave the body and travel thousands of miles in endless directions."

From an Editorial in the N. Y. Evening Journal.

WHY NOT STAY AT YOUR DESK AND LET YOUR MIND TRAVEL FOR YOU OVER THE TELEPHONE LINES? YOU CAN DOUBLE YOUR ABILITY TO DO BUSINESS IF YOU DO BUSINESS BY TELEPHONE.

It's but seventy-two years since the first photographic portrait was made in America—a picture of Miss Dorothy Draper was made by her brother Professor John William Draper of the University of the City of New York. It took an exposure of five minutes in the full glare of the noon day sun.

Today it takes but a fraction of a second, even in the softly modulated light of a studio. Clever photographers and fast plates and lenses have made "having your picture taken" a rather pleasant experience these days.

What's Right in Style

Ask two or three different tailors what's right in style this season and you'll likely get two or three different answers.

Then come in and inspect our Society Brand Clothes made by makers of recognized authority—and you'll be sure of seeing every late style detail correctly and tastefully combined.

Printing

—a profession

The advice and co-operation of the printer who helps you solve your selling problems are just as valuable to you as the drawings of your architect, the reports of your engineer, or the opinions of your lawyer.

Many of our clients realize this important fact and are reaping the benefit in the results produced by their booklets, letters, catalogs and other direct advertising. Their experience will interest you; our experience may be of assistance to you.

A p p r e c i a t i o n

THE Managers of the Nineteen Thirteen Michiganensian take this opportunity for thanking those who have helped in making the book what it is. Space will not permit the mentioning of each individual of the many who have willingly given all of their spare time to the work. The artists, the office staff, the associate editors, all have bent their best efforts toward making the book a success; these and the many others who have done their part, the Managers wish to thank.

The engraving work of the Bureau of Engraving and the printing work of The Cargill Company have been very satisfactory. The staff appreciates particularly the personal interest and splendid ideas and assistance of the complete organization of The Cargill Company and Mr. J. J. Sher of the Bureau of Engraving.
